BOY BANDIT TAKEN AT GUN POINT

Today

They Always Blame Capone
Chicago's Busy Stores
Where Did the Soul Start?
Egypt or Mesopotamia?

By Arthur Brisbane

CHICAGO, Dec. 7—Cloudy in Chicago yesterday morning, but not cold. What is called "dreary weather," nature imitating the expression on the face of the average man.

The latest development under our prohibition civilization that was to be so pure, is a "white slave ring," organized on modern industrial lines, with file index, codes, efficient organization. It is not, literally, a WHITE trade, for the one thousand names of girls from 16 upward on lists taken by the police, include many young Negresses. Vice knows no race prejudice.

It is a simple industry, the raw material costs nothing, except for advertisements offering respectable work to young girls.

Hunger, intimidation and despair do the rest.

Chicago newspapers bring the name of Al Capone into the hideous picture, but perhaps unjustly. If Lake Michigan should overflow its banks and flood the grain pit, many would accuse Capone.

Chicago, however, contains no more vice and crime than other big cities, less than many, in proportion to population. The energy, vivid writing and efficiency of Chicago reporters and city editors make things seem worse than they are.

Outsiders should remember that in addition to Al Capone, names in the history of Illinois include such able men as Pullman, Armour, Swift, Marshall Field, to say nothing of Abraham Lincoln.

The last, perhaps, would wonder at our submission to vice, crime, bootlegging and the prohibition that breeds them all. He might rewrite for 1931 his statement that a people cannot exist half slave and half free.

Depression, or no depression, Santa Claus here is enjoying his usual celebration. Chicago's big stores are crowded into a few blocks of State st., convenient for shoppers. Some have branches in outlying districts for women too busy for central shopping.

H. W. Rieger, secretary of the State Street Council, says that not fewer than 250,000 shoppers crowded the big stores Saturday.

It is a good sign that Americans do not let a passing depression kill the Christmas spirit, which is eternal.

Many shoppers take their children along, a good idea.

Children are not depressed by failure to acquire everything they see. One present or two will make a child happy, representing for that child all the wonders that he has seen, as one drop of salt water gives to the chemist all he needs of the Pacific Ocean.

A child finds happiness in imagination, not in accumulation of possessions. Encourage your child to think and dream, as it plays, and you need not mourn because you cannot afford expensive toys.

Dr. James Henry Breasted tells a learned gathering dedicating the Oriental institute of the University of Chicago that "the soul of man" was practically born about 2000 years before Christ in Egypt. Dr. Breasted attaches little importance to religious authority, as to man's soul. Says he: "No conception of a spotlight of divine Providence, shining exclusively in Palestine, shall despoil man of this crowning glory of his life on earth, the discovery of character."

Man developed his own character, brought forth his own soul, according to Dr. Breasted.

A little child that pushes away its mother's hand, saying, "Walk self mamma," believes that it invented its own feeble legs, but it is mistaken.

Winwood Reade's "Martyrdom of Man" gives an admirable picture of that Egypt, in which Dr. Breasted's soul got its start. And it was not a civilization to admire.

Other soul-starts occurred on the fertile soil deposited b. the two great rivers, in Mesopotamia, at about the same time or earlier. Wherever men had sure crops, owned slaves with power of life and death over them, and had leisure for themselves and their priests, knowledge increased and the soul gained momentum. But it was not BORN there.

One million years before the Pyramids were built, some cave mother, her half naked body,

RIVALS FOR ELECTION

JOHN C. CAREY — CHARLES H. CLARK

Though they shake hands amicably, John C. Carey, president of Boston Street Carmens Union, and Charles H. Clark represent bitter rivalry for control of the organization at its annual election in Franklin schoolhouse, South End, today. Clark is a candidate to succeed Carey as president. (Staff photo.)

CARMEN VOTING IN BITTER FIGHT

A spirited fight is being waged today by Boston Street Carmen's Union at its annual election of officers in old Franklin Schoolhouse in Washington st., near Dover st., South End. It is the most bitterly contested election since the union was organized 19 years ago.

Friends of former business agent William Walsh, who was recently dropped from membership in the organization, are conducting an active campaign to defeat the officers they charge are responsible for Walsh's expulsion.

President John C. Carey, who seeks re-election, heads the list of officers against whom the fight is being conducted.

John J. Leary Is Injured by Auto

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 7 (INS)—John J. Leary, Jr., 58, former Lynn and Boston newspaper man and now connected with the U. S. Department of Labor, was suffering today from injuries received in a motor mishap.

Phiysicians diagnosed his injury as concussion of the brain.

DALRYMPLE, ALL STAR, STRICKEN

New Orleans, Dec. 7 (AP)—Jerry Dalrymple, all-American end and captain of Tulane University's football team, was taken to a hospital here today with a kidney ailment which teammates fear may keep him out of the Rose Bowl game with Southern California at Pasadena on New York's Day.

He was stricken while driving an automobile in McComb, Miss., yesterday. He was given medical attention there at the home of friends and was brought to New Orleans by train today.

Dr. Robert H. Brumfield, who examined Dalrymple at McComb soon after he was stricken, said he was suffering with a contusion of the kidney, caused by a blow in Saturday's game, which Tulane won from Washington.

It's Going to Be Icy for Wednesday

Snow flurries descended on Greater Boston during the early afternoon, but vanished almost as quickly as they came and did not, says the weatherman, presage a coming storm.

The forecaster added, however, that today's moderating weather is just the lull before winter's real advent. Tomorrow night it's going to start getting real cold and on Wednesday it will be the coldest of the season.

Prince May Lose His Little Girl Bride

Cap Ferrat, France, Dec. 7 (AP)—Mrs. Walter S. Davidson of New York and Newport R. I., said today she had not given her consent to the marriage of her daughter, Miss Marian Snowden, who became the bride of Prince Girolamo Rospigloisi in Rome.

She said her daughter had not informed her of the ceremony before it took place, that Miss Snowden is 19 years old, and that the laws of Rhode Island require consent of parent or guardian to the marriage of a minor.

Bankruptcy Ring Rakes in Big Profits

SPLIT FEES BARED IN PROBE

All Lose but the Lawyers; Methods of Booming Business Exposed

Millions of dollars worth of bankruptcy business in the Boston district is in the hands of a small coterie of lawyers, the Boston Evening American reveals today.

Working in state and federal courts, this group has become wealthy by obtaining receiverships, trusteeships and other appointments in connection with bankrupt concerns.

As a result of complaints received from reputable lawyers, the Boston Evening American made an investigation and uncovered unusual conditions.

The probe disclosed that "fee-splitting" has been going on without the knowledge of judges, bankruptcy referees and others in authority.

FEES EAT ASSETS

It showed that certain lawyers, unofficially banded together, had in some instances monopolized the appointments in connection with bankrupt concerns so that the total of their fees frequently ate up the entire assets of the companies.

Methods employed in obtaining these appointments ranged from sending circular letters to creditors to petitioning small concerns into involuntary bankruptcy.

It was also learned that many reputable attorneys, desirous that the situation be cleaned up, are in favor of a Supreme Court investigation, similar to that recently started on auto insurance claims.

The matter of circularizing creditors is to be aired in Federal court tomorrow before Judge James A. Lowell, on the petition of Atty. F. Paul Welsch of 24 Milk st., the Boston Evening American learned.

BANNED AS TRUSTEE

Atty. Welsch has petitioned for a review of the finding of Bankruptcy Referee E. Loring Young, who rejected him as trustee in the bankruptcy case of Conrad H. Crooker.

HATHAWAY IS TO GET HEARING

Providence, R. I., Dec 7 (INS)—Overriding the request of the State for an early hearing, Chief Justice Charles Stearns of the Rhode Island Supreme Court today set March 7 as the date for hearing arguments in the petition for a new trial for Elliott R. Hathaway, convicted of strangling to death Miss Verna Russell, 20-year-old student nurse.

It was virtually the first victory scored by defense counsel, George Hurley, who had requested that March 14 be set as the date.

William A. Toole, third assistant attorney-general, representing the State, had requested that Jan. 29 be set a sthe hearing date.

Guns Block 1500 From Hoover

Washington, Dec. 7 (AP)—Twice repelled by bluecoats, 1500 demonstrators today gave up their attempt to gain admission to the floor of the Senate and turned to the White House.

First a large delegation and then a small one sought to reach the chamber where only Senators are allowed. They bore with them a demand for unemployment insurance.

Refused admittance, they sought to push their way past police, only to be shoved away.

They returned to admit failure to the crowd of demonstrators that awaited them in front of the capitol. Cheers greeted a speech by one of their leaders asserting Congress had refused to hear the demand of the unemployed.

BUILDINGS GUARDED

Then they went as they had come, singing the "Internationale," hymn of the Communists. Their road took them back over Pennsylvania ave. to the White House.

As the demonstrators were leaving the Capitol, a patrol wagon drew up at the west entrance to the White House grounds.

It was followed by Motorcycle policemen to augment those already there.

Special guards were posted at all entrances to the state, war and navy buildings across the avenue from the White House.

After negotiations with police, Benjamin, one of the leaders, asked Richard L. Jervis, chief of the White House secret service, that they be permitted to present their petition personally to President Hoover.

Jervis refused. As Benjamin insisted that it should be done, Jervis said:

"If you have a written petition, I will take it and see that it is handed immediately to President

CONG. GARNER DEFEATS SNELL

Gets Solid Democratic House Vote; Five of Opposition Vote for Schneider

High lights at the opening of the 72d Congress today were:

1—Rep. John N. Garner, Democrat, of Texas, elected Speaker of the House by a vote of 218 to 207 for Bertrand Snell of New York and 5 for George Schneider of Wisconsin.

2—Rep. Tilson of Connecticut yielded the floor leadership for Republicans to Snell.

3—Rep. Kvale, the lone Farmer-Laborite and four independent Republicans, including three from Wisconsin, voted for Schneider for Speaker.

4—The Senate, called to order by Vice-President Curtis, held only a brief session after organizing. The fight over re-electing Senator Moses of New Hampshire President pro tem went over till tomorrow, when the adjournment was taken in memory of Senators Morrow and Caraway.

Washington, Dec. 7—John N. Garner, Representative in the House from Texas for the last 28 years, today was elected Speaker.

The vote was Garner, 218; Bertrand Snell of New York, 207; George Schneider of Wisconsin 5.

The following voted for Schneider: Amlie, Kaiding, Peavy and Withrow, Wisconsin, Republicans, and Kvale, Farmer-Labor, Minnesota.

By their victory the Democrats took control of the House for the first time in 12 years. They have 21 9seats to 214 for the Republicans and one Farmer-Labor. There is one vacancy from New Hampshire

SNELL G. O. P. LEADER

The Republican nominee, Snell of New York, now becomes minority leader, Rep. Tilson having yielded to him today.

Both Reps. Snell and Garner voted present, as did Schneider.

45 GIRLS FLEE LYNN BLAST

Forty-five girl clerks fled today when a muffled explosion was followed by fire in the Lydia Pinkham plant, Western and Cleveland aves., Lynn.

Headed by Miss Mary Davin, chief clerk of the advertising department, the girls left the third floor after a flash of flame descended from the fourth floor.

Fumes from alcohol used in a medical process were ignited by a spark from a motor, according to Otis Russell, foreman.

The sprinkler system of the plant started and sounded an automatic alarm but when city firemen arrived their work was confined to a relief of water damage.

RIGHT BLOOD IS HIS ONLY HOPE

On the chance that someone with the right type of blood may read this, hangs the life of a Saugus man in Massachusetts General Hospital.

He is John Warner, 37, of 17 Harlow st., dying of ulcers of the stomach.

Warner has been a patient at the hospital many wear weeks and his only chance for life is a blood transfusion.

However, the blood of the professional blood-givers on the hospital list does not come within the peculiar classification from which physicans must draw in Warner's case.

Today the doctors asked Boston police to notify Saugus police, and in turn Warner's wife, that some person with the correct type of blood must be found if Warner's life is to be saved.

Special Officer Frank Elliot of the Sandwich police, noticed a youth talking to a railroad gate tender here this morning.

Elliot questioned the lad, and when the youth could not give a satisfactory account of himself, Elliot drew his gun and arrested him.

At state police barracks the youth at first assumed a stubborn silence, saying only that he came from Lynn and knew nothing about any breaks.

CONFESSES BREAKS

When suddenly confronted with the suicide of Smith, Comeau broke down, and confessed to a chain store break in Falmouth, and also to three others, police say.

Legere already had confessed his part in the breaks, according to police.

Comeau, who said he had relatives in Lynn, was turned over to Serg. Roy Conant of the Falmouth police and will be turned over to Nantucket officers today.

He and Legere, charged with breaking and entering, larceny and theft of an automobile, will be ar-

FIGHT OVER MOSES IN SENATE OPENS TOMORROW

OVATION GIVEN GARNER UPON ELECTION

Texan Gets Solid Democratic Vote; Snell Opposed by Five

liberal as the independents in the party desired.

The House roll call showed all the 219 Democrats, 2-3 of the 214 Republicans adn one Farmer-Laborite present, a total of 433. It established an attendance record.

The only member absent was Representative Will Taylor of Tennessee, ill at Memphis.

Representative Arnold of Illinois nominated Representative Garner for Speaker and Representative Hawley of Oregon nominated Snell.

Garner was given a rising ovation by his Democratic colleagues. Republicans paid Snell the same tribute.

TROUBLE IN SENATE

The Texan was elected to succeed his legislative chum but political enemy, the late Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio.

This is the first time a Democrat has held the Speaker's gavel since Champ Clark of Missouri Speaker in the 65th Congress, relinquished it in 1919 to Frederick H. Gillett, of Massachusetts. The latter was in the gallery today.

In the Senate trouble is brewing for the narrow Republican majority, but it did not appear at today's half-hour session.

After charges of fraud and corruption were hurled at Senator John H. Bankhead (D.) of Alabama the Senate adjourned.

MOSES FIGHT TOMORROW

The insurgent rebellion against renaming George H. Moses (R.) of New Hapshire to the presidency pro tem—the highest honor in the Senate—was postponed until tomorrow.

The brief session was occupied with swearing in new senators, the reference to Bankhead's election and the usual resolutions of notification.

The deaths of Senators Dwight W. Morrow (R.) of New Jersey and T. H. Caraway (D.) of Arkansas during the recess, were announced and an adjournment taken out of respect to their memories.

The oaths were administered to all except Mrs. Caraway. Warren Barbour of New Jersey, James Hamilton Lewis of Illonois, and Huey Long of Louisiana. Long and Lewis were absent, and Barbour preferred to wait until tomorrow.

WOMEN FILL GALLERIES

In both Senate and House galleries women filled the sections reserved for members' families. The presidential row in the Senate gallery was occupied by several wives of cabinet members. In the vice-presidential row behind, sat Mrs. Dolly Gann, sister of Vice-President Curtis, with a party of friends.

Members were on the floor of the Senate and House early, smiling and handshaking. Among them were several former members entitled by rule and tradition to the floor privilege.

J. Thomas Heflin, Alabama's white-vested former Senator, was on hand to see the Senate opening session.

Remaining in her office as the Senators assembled, Mrs. Caraway said she would come to the chamber only if needed.

63 SENATE HOLDOVERS

In the House, the Rev. James Shera Montgomery paid tribute in his prayer to the late Speaker Longworth, and asked that "great wisdom and strength guide every member of the new Congress." The Senate prayer was by the Rev. E. Barney Phillips.

In the Senate, 63 holdover Senators answered the roll. The total membership is 96.

It was evident that the Republicans hoped for bi-partisan consideration of some of the most important of President Hoover's recommendations, to be sent in tomorrow. Senator Watson, the Republican Senate leader, said:

"The problems to be presented will be largely of a non-partison character. The moratorium, taxation, banking laws and all financial and economic problems in the offing will be of this character. I have every reason to believe there will be a measure of co-operation that will result in speedy action and be of benefit to the country."

BANK ROBBERS GET $22,000

New Philadelphia, O., Dec. 7 (AP)—Three robbers, using a machine gun and other weapons, held up the Citizens' State Bank at Strasburg today and escaped with $22,000 in gold, silver and currency, and an undetermined amount of bonds.

After setting up the machine gun at the rear of the bank office and pointing it at the front entrance, the robbers took 30 minutes to carefully loot the vault.

John T. Miller, vice-president, was forced to sit on the floor and Kathryn Kapitzky, a clerk, was made to sit in a chair, with their faces toward the wall, while the robbery was committed.

igned tomorrow in Nantucket District Court.

NIGHT IN VACANT HOUSE

Comeau told police that he spent the night in a vacant house in Cotuit st., Sandwich, and came out of hiding this morning.

According to Falmouth police, the three youths broke into a Nantucket chain store Saturday night and stole goods valued at $200. Police learned yesterday that the trio had taken the boat for the mainland and police at Woods Hole were notified.

When an officer went aboard to take them into custody, the trio fled to shore and stole a parked auto, the property of George Nicholson of Woods Hole.

The officer telephoned ahead to another officer, stationed at a railroad crossing, but the youths nearly ran this officer down. He telephoned Bourne police.

Patrolmen Joseph O'Toole and William Crump were sent to the Bourne bridge to head off the youths. The trio saw them and, cutting through a filling station yard, sped along the south road of the canal.

The officers pursued at a 60-mile pace through Sagamore and toward Sandwich. They fired several shots at the fleeing auto, three hitting the rear.

ABANDONED AUTO

The three youths then abandoned their car and fled to the woods. Patrolmen William Crump and Joseph O'Toole, who had followed in another machine, sped in pursuit.

O'Toole captured Legere, and started back to Sandwich with him, and Officer Crump continued his chase of Smith and Comeau.

The pair separated, and Crump followed Smith. In the darkness Crump could catch only fleeting glimpses of the fleeing Smith by means of his pocket flashlight.

Crump steadily closed the distance between them and just as he reached the youth the officer said.

WHIPS OUT GUN

"It'll all up, son, you'd better give up."

Before the officer could place his hand on Smith, the youth whipped out a revolver and shot himself through the heart.

Crump picked up the limp form and started for Sandwich. En route he picked up O'Toole, and they rushed the boy to a nearby house.

Medical Examiner Ernest Curry of Sandwich stated the boy died almost instantaneously.

Lowell, Dec. 7 —Five alleged owners of Lawrence speakeasies, arrested in raids resulting from an expose of conditions as published in the Boston Evening American, were arraigned today before U. S. Commissioner Walsh in Federal Court.

Lucien Gagne and Albert Preave, both of Broadway, were charged with illegal possession of liquor and held in $200 for hearing Dec. 30.

Cornelius A. Twomey of Elm st., Methuen, waived examination and was held in $500 for arraignment Dec. 12.

Nunzio Malandrino of South Broadway and Samuel Belmo of Common st., were held in $500 each for arraignment Dec. 17. They were arrested following a seizure of liquor at 16 Newbury st., Lawrence.

Six Lowell men were held for district court after federal officers testified to making raids at various addresses in this city.

The men gave their names as Robert S. Carr, Channing ave.; Frank Pellerin, Bridge st.; James Vlahatis, Belrose ave.; Terrence D. Leonard, High st.; Joseph Silva, Salem st., and Antonio Rodrigrez, Hanover st.

STRANGE CODE IN DEATH NOTE

Boothbay Harbor, Me., Dec. 7—While officials today are convinced that the woman whose body was found in the surf off Hendrick's Head light after being missing for five days, was a suicide, they are bending every effort to decipher a strange cryptogram found in her handbag.

Police believe the series of numbers found written on a folded piece of waxed paper hold the motive for her strange death. She disappeared from a hotel here shortly after registering from Pittsburgh. A man's belt, to which a heavy flatiron had been attached, was found around her waist.

Another clue that may solve the victim's identity is the initial "P" or "D" on her handbag.

She had registered at the hôtel as Louise G. Meade. Inquiry at Pittsburgh could locate no one of that name. Police believe she assumed a false identity and came here with the intention of taking her own life.

The list of numbers and letters in the baffling message are arranged as follows:

ALL WET BILLS TO DIE, SAY DRYS

Washington, Dec. 7 (INS)—The following forecast of what may be expected from Congress on the prohibition issue was made today by the national prohibition board of strategy:

"No referendum for repeal or modification of the Eighteenth Amendment will be submitted to the states.

"No change will be made in the Volstead act to restore beer and wine.

"No wet effort to cripple enforcement, by cutting down essential appropriations, will succeed. Enforcement is at its best since prohibition was adopted and is constantly improving.

"The usual number of wet bills and resolutions will be introduced. They will just as regularly die in committee, Congress, reflecting the people, is conclusively dry.

$468,000 FOR STATE'S RIVERS AND HARBORS

Estimates Reach Congress From Budget Bureau; Appropriation Same as Last Year

Washington, Dec. 7 (AP)—Money estimates for next year's river and harbor work reached Congress today from the budget bureau's reducing experts with their size the same as last year—$60,000,000.

They came to Capitol Hill before the Senate and House had time to get down to business and were set aside to await their turn before the House Appropriation Committee that must yet be organized.

Rarely are these estimates under-appropriated. The last Congress' river and harbor appropriations exceed $80,000,000 for the current year.

$210,951,675 COST

Maj.-Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of vast army engineering projects, submitted the figures on what he could use profitably in the fiscal year beginning next July 1 on plans it is estimated will cost $210,951,675 to complete.

For the great inland waterways including the Mississippi river system and the Illinois, Missouri, Ohio and lesser systems, Brown asked $25,431,500. For Atlantic coast harbors and channels he wanted $10,835,100; for the Pacific coast $4,514,950.

Detailed estimates on projects:

	Improvement.	Maint.
Lynn harbor	$80,000
Boston harbor		$25,000
Pollock Rip shoals		50,000
Cross Rip shoals		15,000
New Bedford harbor	60,000
Fall River harbor	88,000
Taunton river	150,000

Harbors and channels on the Gulf coast were allotted $3,088,500. The Great Lakes system would be given $7,333,400. Canals along the coast from Boston to Corpus Christi, Tex., would take $7,209,300.

On the entire Mississippi river system Brown would spend $25,030,000.

Floyd Gibbons Is Flying to Scene of Warfare

Tokio, Dec. 7 (INS)—Floyd Gibbons, noted war correspondent and radio broadcaster, left Tokio today by airplane for Manchuria to report the Sino-Japanese hostilities for International News Service.

After flying to Dairen, Manchuria, Gibbons will go by train to Mukden, expecting to reach there at 8 a. m. tomorrow.

U. S. COURT TO DECIDE EXILE

Whether Francesco Robba, 23, of Turin, Italy, is entitled to remain in this country as a tourist or shall be deported is a question Judge James A. Lowell will decide late today.

Robba was ordered deported by the New York authorities and put aboard the liner Saturnia in that city last Thursday on the return trip to Italy.

His wife, Mrs. Lorenza Robba of Ninth ave., New York city, got in touch with Atty. Cornelius F. Keating of Boston, by long distance telephone and had him get a writ of habeas corpus.

The petition for the writ cites that Robba was entitled to visit America as a tourist since he has $1000 and credi of $500.

Immigration authorities at Ellis Island had not permitted him to land, however, and, after a special inquiry, his deportation was affirmed by the Secretary of Labor.

Noted Editors to Be Ad Club Speakers

Two noted newspaper men who, through their newspaper and platform publicity, rejuvenated the economic life of the agricultural Northwest, will address the Advertising Club of Boston at its regular Tuesday luncheon in the Hotel Statler.

Frederick E. Murphy, publisher of the Minneapolis Tribune and director of the Associated Press, and Charles F. Collisson, farm editor of the Tribune, are the two speakers.

Mr. Murphy, through his newspaper, launched the Minnesota plan, designed to restore buying power to the farmers in the Northwest when that section was demoralized with swollen wheat acreage and peacetime collapse of the wheat price.

Collisson, farm editor of the Tribune, and Murphty's aid in this great development, is one of the nation's leading farming experts.

Robbed by Death

Miss Gertrude St. Marie, pretty Springfield studio worker, whose secret engagement to Lowell Bayles, speed flier, has been revealed following his death in a crash Saturday.

BAYLES WAS TO WED SOON

Springfield, Dec. 7—Secret plans for a wedding after Christmas of Lowell R. Bayles and Miss Gertrude St. Marie have been revealed here with the departure of the young woman for Newton, Ill., to attend the funeral Wednesday of the flier, killed at Detroit, when a new world's land plane speed record seemed in his grasp.

Friends revealed that the couple had been acquainted almost two years.

Miss St. Marie explained that the reason the romance had never been revealed was that Bayles had told her that his aviation activities were public business, but his private life was his own affair and hers.

MONOXIDE GAS KILLS 1; 2 ILL

Newport, R. I., Dec. 7—Monoxide gas killed one man and nearly ended the lives of his wife and son today in the home of Fischel David, 60, president of the David Wholesale Co.

Mrs. Rose David, 55, and Franks David, 30, were unconscious in the gas-filled house. They will recover. The son is proprietor of the Boston Grocery Store here.

According to police, one of the family arose early and lighted the heater, returned to bed and fell asleep.

WOMAN SLAYER PLEADS GUILTY

Wooster, O., Dec. 7 (AP)—Mrs. Julia Maude Lowther, Ashtabula, once sentenced to be the first woman electrocuted in Ohio for murder, pleaded guilty to a charge of homicide today as her second trial on the murder charge was begun.

Mrs. Lowther is acused of killing Mrs. Clara Smith, 28, Ashtabula, in a plot with Mrs. Smith's husband.

The first act was played out to a fatal finish in a lonely lane in Ashtabula County, when Mrs. Smith, was slain.

Tilby Smith, husband of the slain woman, and Mrs. Lowther, were tried and convicted of first degree murder for the killing.

The last act was enacted in the death house at Ohio penitentiary November 20, when Smith was electrocuted.

Mrs. Lowther won a new trial and was granted a change of venue to a locale less familiar with the slaying.

PROBATION FOR EX-CANDIDATE

Things have been breaking badly for Harrison J. Woodruff of Broadway, Everett, since he was defeated for nomination in the fight for mayor of that city.

A few days ago Woodruff said he went to his father's home in Linden st. and asked for a dollar with which to buy food. He was refused, and in turn, refused to leave the house.

James G. Woodruff, 82, City Almoner for Everett, Harrison's father, called the police, and the younger man was placed under arrest.

Today in Malden district court, Judge Davis found Woodruff guilty of trespassing, and placed him on probation until next June.

JAPANESE FEAR BIG SURPRISE BY CHINESE

Elaborate Precautions Taken to Prevent a Military Coup at Mukden

By EDWARD HUNTER

(Copyright, 1931, by International News Service)

Mukden, Dec. 7 (INS)—Sudden alarm was caused here tonight when the Japanese police puto into effect at 6 p. m. emergency regulations amounting to a curfew law.

Reports had been received that Chinese soldiers, in plain clothes, were planning to slip into Mukden and suddenly raid strategic points within this city, headquarters of the Japanese army in Manchuria, in connection with the so-called Chinese enveloping movement against Mukden.

In certain sections of the city armed police were stationed only 50 feet apart and all passersby were questioned.

GARRISON WEAK.

The Mukden garrison had been weakened by the dispatch of strong detachments to Hsinmintun and Changtu, after a series of Chinese bandit raids which had threatened Japanese railway connections north and south of Mukden.

The raids were carried out by infantry, supported by machine gun detachments and airplanes, and were accomplished without any Chinese casualties, according to Japanese military headquarters here.

Reorts from field commanders said many of the Chinese fled as the Japanese approached and others surrendered.

LOOTERS SUPPRESSED.

One of the Japanese detachments was sent out to suppress 300 Chinese accused of looting the village of Tsailopu, a few miles west of the Liao river.

The Japanese also dispersed a number of Chinese troops who crossed from the east side of the river and were attempting to make repairs on the Newchwang-Koupangtze branch of the Peiping-Mukden railway.

In the Changtu region, north of Mukden, the Japanese were apprehensive that Chinese infantry, which had occupied Fakumen, intended to move to Changtu.

MUST TAKE CHINCHOW.

All these activities were described at military headquarters here as nothing more than campaigns to maintain order in the railroad zones.

Continued Chinese troop movements in South Manchuria convinced Japanese military authorities, however, that Chinchow will have to be taken by force unless some arrangement is made for the withdrawal of Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang's forces to the Great War.

Japan Favors League Plan With Reservation

Tokio, Dec. 7 (AP)—It was said authoritatively today that the Japanese government is prepared to accept a suggestion by the League of Nations council that Japan make a separate reservation regarding the right to suppress banditry in the proposed Chinchow neutral zone the league would establish in Manchuria.

This, however, would be with the understanding that no counter-reservation nullifying that made by Japan be permitted.

The government also has decided, it was said, to agree to the formula proposed by its league representative, Nobumi Ito, regarding the scope of the proposed neutral commission of inquiry in Manchuria.

Japan Likely to Pass Up Arms Conference

Tokio, Dec. 7 (INS)—Gen. Harushige Ninomiya, assistant chief of staff, said tonight Japan may not participate in the disarmament conference at Geneva in February.

"Great Britain seems to be taking an indecisive attitude toward the conference," he said.

"Unless the Manchuria situation is settled, Japan may be unable to contribute much to the conference and if circumstances warrant may not be represented there."

Dawes Virtually Quits League Negotiations

Paris, Dec. 7 (INS)—Ambassador Charles G. Dawes has virtually withdrawn from all participation in negotiations here for settlement of the conflict in Manchuria.

League officials are puzzled to know whether Dawes is acting upon his own initiative or upon instructions from his home government.

King and Queen in London

London, Dec. 7 (AP)—Queen Mary, looking a bit pale, but otherwise well, arrived from Sandringham today with the King. She has been under treatment for a cold.

Mrs. Dall Presides Over Children's Party Bureau

New York, Dec. 7—A daughter of Gov. Roosevelt is going to give a business demonstration of some of her ideas about children.

Mrs. Dall

Mrs Curtis B. Dall, the former Anna Roosevelt, mother of two children, and Mrs. Clark W. Short, mother of three regard talk about the sophistication of the modern youngster as greatly exaggerated.

Together they have established a children's party bureau, where parties of all sizes and descriptions for children from 2 to 14 years may be arranged. Their first order is a holiday party for sophisticated youngsters of stage and screen folk, with a Christmas tree and all the regular old-fashioned Christmas trimmings with home atmosphere.

Farm Labor Bloc Is Sure to Agree

Washington, Dec. 7 (AP)—The Senate's most unanimous bloc reorganized today, unchanged from the lineup presented since 1922.

Henrik Shipstead

It is the Farmer-Labor party in the Senate; leader, Henrik Shipstead; whip, Henrik Shipstead; complete membership, Henrik Shipstead.

The party's one vote as cast by the rebust Minnesotan holds the balance between 48 Republicans and 47 Democrats. It may settle important issues. He will vote on all measures, he says, "for what they're worth."

Grandi and Wife Land on Italian Soil Today

S. S. Augustus, Dec. 7—Touching Italian soil for the first time since they sailed for America a month ago, Foreign Minister Dino Grandi and his party will land at Palermo, Sicily, today, for a day of sightseeing.

Dino Grandi

The foreign minister and Mrs. Grandi will be the guests at luncheon of the prefect of Palermo and then visit historic spots. There will be no official reception.

Signor Grandi is expected to address the Italian Senate early next week and give a report on his conversations with President Hoover. His first words, of course, will be for Premier Mussolini.

with its covering of red hair, enveloped in a rawhide, held close to her breast a new born baby, like herself. She would defy hungry bears, and cannibal men, to defend that baby, and gladly die fighting for it.

There was soul in that woman, and while it lacked the polish of Egypt's civilization, it was as real a soul as that of any Pharoah, driving 100,000 slaves to pile pyramid stones above his grave, and paying priests to procure forgiveness for his sins and experts to embalm his body, that the corpse might last forever.

He little dreamed that his gods were all unreal, or that his mummy would lie in the museum on this Michigan Lake front, built with Marshall Field's dry goods money.

Any speculations about the exact birth date of the human soul are dubious. It came to this earth, in embryo, in some primitive form of life; able to survive the cold of interstellar space, has been developing ever since, and has a long way to go.

That is another speculation, and you need not believe that, either.

BLUEBEARD DONS HIS BEST AS TRIAL OPENS IN OPERA HOUSE

'KILLER' SQUINTS AT FATE

POWERS, THE WEST VIRGINIA KILLER

EYES THAT CAPTIVATED WOMEN

MRS. LEMKE, A "BLUEBEARD" VICTIM

Harry F. Powers, West Virginia "Bluebeard," went on trial in Clarksburg today. He will face a jury for killing Mrs. Dorothy Pressler Lemke of Northboro, Mass. Powers is charged with causing Mrs. Lemke to withdraw $4287 from a Worcester bank and then of taking her to West Virginia, where he killed her. The "Bluebeard" is shown above in a Clarksburg jail. It was his penetrating eyes and suave mannerisms that captured the heart and savings of Mrs. Lemke, the Northboro widow, who is shown below. The trials that concern other deaths charged to Powers will be held later on. (I. N. R. photo.)

MEDICOS WAR ON WOOD ALCOHOL

New York, Dec. 7 (INS)—Charging that more than 200 persons died last winter from wood alcohol vapor or through skin contact with the poison, the American Medical Association is seeking prohibition of its use in anti-freeze and other solution of easy access.

More than two columns of the current issue of the Journal of the association are devoted to a discussion of the dangers of wood alcohol as a solvent, adulterant or in solutions for prevention of freezing in automobile radiators.

Most of the increasing wood alcohol deaths occur as a result of industrial occupations. Attendants at gasoline filling stations who get anti-freeze solutions on their hands several times daily are the most frequent sufferers.

Others are those employed in rooms where the fumes of wood agolas result of its use as a solvent in various chemical solutions.

The editorial states that prohibition is largely responsible for this increase in deaths from wood alcohol among persons who do not drink any of the stuff.

7 Gavels But Garner Needs Only One

Washington, Dec. 7 (AP)—Somebody thought there was going to be a lot of wear and tear on gavels in the House today—the Capitol shop turned out half a dozen for the opening session.

But John Garner of Texas had one of his own ready to use. It is made of knotty mesquite, a tree native to his home state.

NOTE FROM WIFE CHEERS SKI GIRL

New York, Dec. 7 (INS)—"Dear Mother: Sonny and I came to see you, but they won't let us in. We both send love. God bless you. Inez."

May Gledhill, Canadian "ski girl" of New York's fantastic "friendliness triangle" treasured that note today as the only direct word she received about her two-year-old baby since she was taken to Nassau County Hospital after a nervous breakdown.

The boy, son of May and Ernest W. A. Conner, whose wife Inez sheltered May when Conner recently was sent to a Vermont prison for forgery, was taken to the hospital by Mrs. Conner.

Officials were willing to admit the woman, although she arrived after regular visiting hours, but refused to permit the child to be taken into the ward.

Hospital authorities reported Miss Gledhill much improved.

Mother of 2 Admits Holdup of Bank

Tiffin, O., Dec. 7 (AP)—Mrs. Hazel Bullard, 31, of Carey, mother of two children, confessed today she led three men in the $2061 holdup of the Bettsville Banking Company offices Saturday, Prosecutor Paul Flynn announced.

Following her confession, $900 in new bills was found under a rain barrel at the home of John Wilcox of Carey, who admitted, Flynn said, he plotted the robbery. Alva Wilcox, 23, John's son, and John Terry, 43, of Upper Sandusky, denied complicity.

Mrs. Culbertson Says 'Battle of Century' Is Sex Test

CROWD PACKS COURT AT TRIAL OF POWERS

"Bluebeard" Dresses in Best as He Begins Fight for Life as Slayer

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Correspondent.

Clarksburg, W. V., Dec. 7 (INS)—All the world is a stage—in a real theater of life and death. Moore's Opera House was the courtroom as the curtain rolled up today on the murder trial of Harry Powers, West Virginia Bluebeard.

The man of many names will be tried for the garroting of Mrs. Dorothy Pressler Lemke, 50-year-old widow, of Northboro, Mass.

But the ghosts of four other victims Powers has confessed to slaying, Mrs. Asta Eicher, of Park Ridge, Ill., and her three children, will hover in the wings.

FIGHTS AGAINST NOOSE

The noose is virtually swinging its dizzy rhythm across the tortoise-shell spectacles of the squat, smooth-faced, suave-tongued, oily penman who wrote of love while thinking of murder to hundreds of romantic women.

Powers went to court today dressed in a new suit and all of his best clothes.

He went there with a smile on his face to begin his fight for life.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Flemming, of Northboro, sister and brother-in-law of Mrs. Lemke, took their place among the bi garray of witnesses on the stage soon after the trial was opened. They kept their eyes fixed on Powers, who carefully avoided their gaze.

POWERS IS UNMOVED

As the task of selecting the jury began Powers followed the questioning of the prospective jurors with interest. He showed no emotion at any mention made of his possible fate.

"Haven't you heard people say about Powers that hanging's too good for him?" the defense attorney asked as he examined one talisman.

Powers did not move an eyelid.

My mid-afternoon the task of filling the jury box had been half completed.

A file of 39 state witnesses will play their roles in the witness box set upon the opera house stage. They will trace the plot from the days when Powers courted Mrs. Lemke through a matrimonial agency, through his departure from Northboro with his victim on a purported bridal trip to the finding of the crumpled body in a ditch beside the slaughter-house garage he built.

THAYER IS GIVEN THAT 'SHAKER'

Worcester, Nov. 7—The this-for-me-and-that-for-you quarrel between Fred B. Thayer and his ex wife, Mrs. Jane H. Thayer, ended today in Superior Court—with Thayer being awarded the embattled cocktail shaker and a tea wagon.

Mrs. Thayer, among other things, will receive several sets or pairs or individuals of chemises—which seems only fair.

Several months ago Thayer, who testified in court that he was often forced to sleep in the henhouse at the rear of the Thayer home in Grafton, won a divorce over his wife in their cross-suit court battle.

Then she sued to recover a cocktail shaker and other articles in the Thayer home.

Judge Arthur Butterworth has been busy with a pencil ever since, and today announced his decision and the division.

Thayer, in addition to receiving the cocktail shaker and tea wagon gets all the salt and pepper shakers—there's a break—as well as 12 goblets, among other articles.

Mrs. Thayer, in addition to the chemises and other articles, gets a dozen highball glasses, a dozen wine glasses and a dozen water glasses, as well as a picture of the Roman Forum.

Judge Butterworth made no comment in announcing the division.

Gold Brick Thief Saved by Pastor

New York, Dec. 7 (AP)—A plea by his pastor won a suspended sentence today for Charles A. Muche, clerk, who took a $4000 gold brick from the U. S. assay office.

The Rev. Charles C. Cain said Muche had a good reputation and U. S. Atty. Medalie said he believed he acted on impulse. Judge Knox indicated his belief that any one who thought he could take a gold brick from the U. S. assay office and get away with it was naive rather than a criminal.

London, Dec. 7 (AP)—Less than a week after the second round table conference closed in London without providing, Mahatma Gandhi said, for "real freedom" for India, protested, including a call for a revival of passive resistance and the boycott, have been registered in three important Indian centers.

The provincial conference in Bengal urged a boycott of British goods, banks, insurance companies and shipping lines.

The council of the All-India Moslem League at New Delhi expressed dissatisfaction with the British government's failure to announce a decision concerning the safeguarding of Moslem rights.

At Lucknow an Agrarian subcommittee authorized local subcommittees to begin a no-rent campaign immediately.

U. S. TO BORROW $1,300,000,000

Washington, Dec. 7 (AP)—The Treasury will borrow $1,300,000,000.

This amount of securities, Secretary Mellon announced, will be offered Dec. 15. It is the fourth time this year the Treasury has been in the market for more than a billion dollars.

Most of the money—$1,090,000,000—will be used to pay off debts. The remainder will go to current expenses.

The offerings will consist of $600,000,000 of one-year 3¼ per cent Treasury notes, $300,000,000 in 2¾ per cent six-month Treasury certificates and $400,000,000 in 3 per cent nine-month certificates and indebtedness.

The fact the issues are for short terms was viewed as indicating, officials believed, the amount could be paid off a year hence due to improved business conditions.

WOMEN MEMBERS IN SMART CUT GOWNS

Fair Sex in Congress Appear for the Opening Session in Garb of Businesslike Hue

Washington, Dec. 7 (AP)—Smart in cut, dark and businesslike in color, were the opening day gowns chosen by the women of the House of Representatives.

Most of them were brightened by shoulder bouquets or corsages, and had contrasting touches of white.

RUTH BRYAN OWEN

Mrs. Mary T. Norton, New Jersey Democrat, on whom eyes were centered because of her probable chairmanship of the District of Columbia committee, first such honor to go to a woman, wore crepe of a French blue, with contrasting white front. As on all previous opening days since she has been in the House, she wore a corsage sent by her husband in Jersey City.

Mrs. Florence P. Kahn, California Republican, wore a gown of black satin. On it she wore white flowers.

Black woolen, Massachusetts-made, was chosen by Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, of that state. A white collar gave contrast. Her bouquet was of orchids. She wore a silver fox fur.

Rep. Ruth Bryan Owen, who usually wears the orchid flower that grows in her Florida district, varied the program by appearing with white gardenias on her black gown.

Rep. Ruth Baker Pratt, representing one of the New York's wealthiest districts, appeared in a simply cut dress of black crepe. Rep. Effiegene Wingo, from an Arkansas district bravely recovering from drought, wore black crepe-de-chine with white georgette collar.

The most missed feminine gallery figure was Mrs. Alice Longworth, who sat in the speaker's box at the opening of the last session of Congress presided over by her husband, the late Nicholas Longworth.

Early to arrive on the Senate side was Mrs. Dolly Gann, sister of Vice-President Curtis. She was dressed in a black velvet suit, black hat and silver fox fur.

Great Contract Series Starts Like Arabian Nights for Her, With Odds $5000 to $1000

(This is the first of a series of stories on the Culbertson-Lenz match by Josephine Culbertson, wife of Ely Culbertson, an originator with her husband of the approach-forcing system of contract bridge. The match begins this evening. Mr. and Mrs. Culbertson will oppose Sidney S. Lenz and Oswald Jacoby.)

By MRS. JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON
World's Greatest Woman Bridge Player. Written Especially for the Boston Evening American.

Copyright, 1931, by International News Service.

New York, Dec. 7—The heroine in "Thousand and One Nights" when condemned to death by the cruel Caliph started a story which never ended and so intrigued the cruel ruler that her life was spared.

As I start this story of the thousand and one bridge hands in the Culbertson-Lenz match, I feel that I must point out that the Arabian Nights tale did not end as most men probably think a story of this sort should end. The caliph was really not talked to death.

My message to the women bridge players of the country is parallel in some particulars to the task of the Arabian Nights heroine. Most of the masculine bridge players of the country have condemned me, mentally at least, to an early death in the arena of bridge. For the first time a woman is presuming to invade another exclusively masculine field. She is fighting in a "battle of the century."

JUST LIKE THE JONESES

Masculine superiority has assured most men that I will break under the strain of the gruelling competition. Mr. Culbertson assures me that I have been chosen as his partner because, in spite of my apparent nervousness before every big match, I do not crack up. The lords of creation, therefore, may take it from a man who should know, that the feminine half of the Culbertson team will last through her part of the contest. Like the thousand and one nights lady, however, I suppose I must tell my story in order to establish my right to live!

A great deal of importance is being attached to the Culbertson-Lenz match by the bridge players

WOULD ABOLISH DEADLY GRID

New York, Dec. 7 (AP)—A football toll, which has grown to 40 for the 1931 season, today prompted Spectator, Columbia student daily, to urge abolition of the game as an intercollegiate sport.

In an editorial titled "Death Stalks Over the Gridiron," Spectator charges the game now is played largely for the entertainment of spectators and the profit of the coaches and "other parasites."

VERMONT FIRE LOSS $100,000

Bellows Falls, Vt., Dec. 7 (AP)—A row of three frame buildings on the west side of Westminster st., housing the Star Theater, seven stores and offices, was destroyed by fire today with an estimated loss of $100,000.

The Baptist Church building, located on a terrace above the stores, was seriously damaged by the heat and other nearby buildings suffered less damage. Smoke and water caused heavy losses to stores in adjacent buildings.

The fire started in the basement of a candy company and was attributed to the heater. Firemen fought the flames in a temperature of 10 degrees and several received frost bites.

Georgia Town Votes on Equal Rights of Cows on Streets

Sparks, Ga., Dec. 7 (AP)—Freedom of the streets for cows is an issue in an election to be held here tomorrow.

Last March 44 persons voted cows should not be allowed on the streets of Sparks and 42 voted they should be permitted to roam where bovine inclinations might lead them.

The law was to have gone into effect December 1, but George Rentz asked an injunction against enforcement on grounds the election was illegal.

NEW CHARGES IN TORTURE CASE

Worcester, Dec. 7—Two new complaints will be lodged against Mrs. Eva Karlson, mother of the "torture" baby, when she is arraigned tomorrow in district court. The woman, who ran afoul of the law when her 22-month old daughter, Helen, was discovered by social service investigators hidden in a closet, emaciated and blind in one eye, has already pleaded not guilty to charges of disorderly conduct and concealing a birth.

The latter charge arose from finding an infant buried in the cellar of the Karlson home in Cambridge st.

Tomorrow she will be charged with concealing the death of the infant and with the neglect of little Helen, who now is under care in a local hospital.

When Mrs. Karlson is arraigned, Alphone Myatt, 51, of Southbridge st., whom police claim was unlawfully living with the woman, will also be arraigned for disorderly conduct and concealing a birth.

Driver Flees Scene as Woman Is Hit

As Mrs. Lucy Thompson, 40, of 46 Dunstable st., Charlestown alighted from a street car in Main st. yesterday she was struck by an auto, the operator of which failed to stop. Mrs. Thompson refused medical treatment to an injury to her hip.

A. G. WEEKS DIES IN MARION

Marion, Dec. 7—Andrew Gray Weeks, 70, former member of the firm of Weeks & Potter and a noted entomologist, died today at his home.

The entomologist, born Oct. 3, 1861, the son of Andrew Gray Weeks and [illegible] Weeks, was graduated from Harvard in the class of 1883.

From 1902 to 1905 he was an associate in zoology at Harvard, and from 1911 to 1918 served as associate in entomology. He was also author of several books on species of the lepidoptera.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Helen P. Weeks of South Dartmouth, and Mrs. Edgar C. Rust of Chestnut Hill.

CAREY FIGHT FOR SEAT WATCHED

Newburyport, Dec. 7—The eyes that will watch tomorrow the battle of Mayor Andrew J. ("Bossy") Gillis to win a third term will also be watching that of Norbert A. Carey, former Newburyport High School football star, to place on the school committee.

Carey, a Boston cotton broker and a native of Newburyport, has been waging a vigorous campaign since the primaries and said today that he is confident of victory.

FOXX CHEERS LITTLE 'FAN'

Springfield, Dec. 7 (AP)—Little Jimmy Foxx—namesake of the hard-hitting star of the Philadelphia Athletics—a 16-months-old patient in the Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children, has a favorite plaything to toss about these days. It is an autographed baseball, a gift from the Athletics' hard-hitting first baseman.

The famed Jimmy, who is now making a basketball tour with three other members of the Athletics, Jimmy Dykes, "Mule" Haas and Jim Peterson, visited the hospital before appearing in a local game. He was thrilled to learn that one of the young patients answered to his name.

He played with the tot for several minutes and then left the baseball for the little fellow. The players also visited the boys at the Brightside Orphanage.

RUMAN PRINCE GIVES UP ALL FOR HIS LOVE

Bucharest, Dec. 7 (INS)—Putting love above royal titles and honors, Prince Nicholas of Rumania today renounced membership in the Rumanian royal family and announced he would stand by his bride, the former Mme. Jana Lucia Deletj, regardless of consequences.

He sacrificed all his constitutional rights, abandoned titles and prerogatives and commissions in the army, navy and air force, and prepared to flee with wrath of his brother, King Carol II, by going into life-long exile with his bride.

Government circles, which have persistently shrouded all developments in the strange romance in an aura of mystery, issued an official denial of Nicholas' renunciation. Friends of the couple, however, stated positively that the prince's unalterable decision was communicated to the government in a letter to the Rumanian Minister of Justice.

A report in Vienna that Nicholas' announcement had been followed immediately by stern disciplinary measures, involving two months' imprisonment by order of the Supreme Army Council, was likewise denied.

$30,000 Damage by Fire at Athol

Athol, Dec. 7 (AP)—Damage estimated at $30,000 was done by a fire which broke out in the District Court building today.

FRANCE BLOCKS STEWART VOTE AT BASEL

Basel, Switzerland, Dec. 7 (AP)—Prof. Alberto Beneduce of Italy today was elected president of the Young plan advisory committee studying Germany's capacity to pay reparations.

The seven committee members selected him after Walter W. Stewart, American representative, had declined the nomination. A proposal to elect Mr. Stewart, it was understood, was opposed by the French delegation.

The committee chose four additional members, as empowered under the Young plan. They are Hendryk Colijn of Holland, Otto Rydbeck of Sweden, M. Bindschedler of Switzerland and M. Duritsch of Jugoslavia.

Other members are Prof. Charles Rist, France; Emil Francqui, Belgium; M. B. Nohara, Japan, and Gates W. McGarrah, president of the World Bank, who acted as president pro tem.

Haverhill Couple Near Death in Crash

North Andover, Dec. 7—Isadore Klapper, 56, and his wife, Bessie, 55, of Haverhill, were so badly injured that they may die when an automobile driven by their son skidded at Hay Scales corner early today and crashed into a tree.

Sidney, the son, escaped injury. The father and mother were taken to Lawrence General Hospital.

Shopping with Priscilla Price

DEAREST ANNE:

$3.75 Sample Dresses —$6.75

A limited budget strained with Christmas gift-list demands is no excuse for not having those smart dresses that you need for Holiday activities, if you go to the New York Dress Mfg. Co. They have thousands and thousands of dresses to choose from, mostly samples in all the new materials and styles. You can't be extravagant, for the highest price is $6.75. There are many fascinating frocks at $3.75 and many as low as $2.50. They have the largest selection of dresses for all occasions. They are in all sizes from 12 to 20; 11 to 19; 14½ to 26½, and 36 to 60. Refunds and exchanges within five days if the price tag is not removed. The New York Dress Mfg. Co. is at 515 Washington St., 2nd floor, opp. R. H. White's.

"Oh! Why Haven't

I been here before!" That is the remark so many people make leaving Nadell's. Truly, Anne, I know of no better place to have a delicious meal. When you're doing your Christmas Shopping drop in for luncheon. Conveniently located on Arch St., it's just one block down from Washington St., off Summer St. You may have your fortune told gratis with their special luncheon. Price is never a worry at Nadell's. You may have a delicious sandwich for as low as 15c—a hot luncheon for as low as 40c—and a Special luncheon with fortune telling gratis for as low as 50c. Nadell's Spa is at 103 Arch St.—just around the corner from Summer St.—open from 7 A. M. to 4 P. M. Their other store is at 1 Chauncy St., and is open from 7 A. M. till 7 P. M. The Reader is just at the Arch St. Spa.

Posner's Has Earned

justly their enviable reputation as the "Great Men's Store Where Women Like to Shop." And their advice as to what men like is excellent—for they have been observing the likes and dislikes of men and boys for years. Posner's has something extra special in the way of a crepe de chine tie and handkerchief combination. They come in tan, maroon, rust, navy and light blue—And each set is attractively boxed—the price only $1! Another gift that will make this Christmas an extra nice one for any man is one of their distinctive all wool robes. They're specially priced at $5.95 just for Christmas. In gay stripings and conservative solid colors. Posner's, School St., at City Hall Ave.; Washington St., at Avery; Court St., at Scollay Sq.

Fur Remodeling

It's like having a new coat for an old one, to have the stylists of Parker Bros. restyle your old fur coat so that it is up to the minute. Why, for as low as $35 and $50, you can have your coat relined and remodeled and made to look as if it just came from an exclusive fur shop! Or if it is too badly worn for remodeling, it can be converted into a chic little jacket, with cloth skirt, that is being worn by the smartest women. If there's fur enough, you may have jaunty muff with it—and all for as low as $35 or $40. That price includes the material for the skirt as well. Here's a bargain that should touch your heart as well as your pocketbook. Fur coats repaired, $5 up. Relining for $10 (including the material). The best process cleansing is only $1.00. Parker Bros., 110 Tremont St., Room 309, Devonshire 5243.

GLORIFY YOUR GIFTS!

Gift wrappings are half the fun! And half the joy of Christmas morning comes with the first glimpse of colorful boxes of all shapes and sizes. The makers of wrapping papers, ribbons and twines have outdone themselves this season and the result is the most entrancing collection of amusing, artistic and appropriate papers I have ever seen! You will find scores of suggestions in intriguing papers, ribbons, stickers, labels, cards and other accessories, gay with Yuletide spirit in Filene's Gift Wrapping Section on the street floor balcony. Here girls will weigh, wrap and mail your gifts—charging you only the cost of the materials used! But if you prefer you may buy wrappings there very reasonably and use your own ingenuity and cleverness in wrapping your gifts! Just wait until you see the new cellophane paper—you use it over heavy silver, red, green or black wrapping—the effect is simply stunning! There are a lot more new features in gift wrapping this season—but you'd better go and see them for yourself! They have samples of their handiwork displayed—attractive gold, black with silver, and white packages. You'll love the grand Scottie papers for gloves, stockings and such. If you are wrapping your own gifts they have a wonderful Filene Special—40 assorted sheets for only 50c—or if you want more elaborate papers see the wrappings that are ten cents a sheet! Don't forget you may have your gifts wrapped there by experts—and you'll be charged only for the materials used. Filene's Gift Wrapping Service is on the street floor balcony.

A Gift That's Incomparable Is something that is wearable

If you are doing what hundreds of other discerning shoppers are doing this year, you'll spend your Christmas check in a practical fashion. And L. P. Rogers and Son is ready to help you with an exquisite selection of fascinating new party frocks for this festive season. In the group are velvets, satins, taffetas and crepes, at new low prices of $7.95, $10.50 and $16.50. Or if a practical dress for business or street wear would be more appreciated you are certain to discover it in this outstanding collection. You can be real selfish and buy yourself a frock from their wonderful selection which they are closing out at only $2.94! You'll find delightful dresses for all occasions, among them. No wonder crowds are thronging to this delightful shop—you'll enjoy the atmosphere of their lovely dress department—during the busy weeks before Christmas. There's every type of dress anyone could want, and they are priced astonishingly low for such quality. It will be practically impossible not to choose the right gift dress—for yourself or for whomever you have in mind, when you see their complete selection. L. P. Rogers and Son is at 43 Winter St.

Young Married Folk

are difficult subjects. "They've just been married a year." Everyone has such an entry on his list. It's sometimes difficult to find an appropriate "two-in-one" gift. That's why I suggest the Gift Boxes, brimful of savory delicacies and good foods that I found in Cobb, Bates and Yerxa's. They have such an enticing array of these boxes—in different sizes—ranging from the tempting Family Box at only $3.00 to larger boxes at $10 and $15. These splendid Gift Boxes are planned especialy for those who wish to make a gift that combines better foods and rare delicacies—fine tea, and coffee, sweet biscuits, fruit cake, jam, olives, dates, sardines, in a generous and varied assortment. You couldn't select a more distinguished gift. You'll find them at Cobb, Bates and Yerxa Co. at 65 Summer St.

If She's Been Hinting

she's out at the heel, step up and give her some Holeproof Hosiery! You'll find it at Noyes Bros. Even if she hasn't given you the tiniest hint as to what would please her most Christmas morn—Remember, every woman welcomes one more pair of stockings and feels a thrill of satisfaction when she has a half dozen tucked away somewhere. There's nothing more exquisitely lovely than these sheer, shimmery Holeproof stockings. You'll surely find the shade you want—They feature the smartest new colors such as Strut for the rust—brown—henna—costume—and the sheer gunmetal oxide called Foggy for evening wear. Holeproof Hosiery is priced at $1, $1.25, $1.50 and $1.95. Noyes Bros., is at 127 Tremont St.

A Good Part

of every man's life is spent in the cheery comfort of his own fireside. If you are racking your brain over the right gift for "him" I want to tell you of the distinctive English lounge chair I saw at Ferdinand's. It's price—$22.50—is just as inviting as its luxuriously comfortable cushion. Ferdinand's have this charming lounge chair in a variety of fine velours, damasks or tapestries so that your choice may be an harmonious addition to the beauty of your living room. Such a gift is at the same time practical, distinguished, and in excellent taste . . . and may be selected from an extraordinarily fine collection at Ferdinand's, Dudley St. Terminal, and Central Square, Cambridge, and Needham.

"thank you" and mean it—when he receives a Diary Date book! It's an ideal gift, suited to depression pocketbooks but designed to please the most exacting on your list, this attractive Diary Date book I discovered in Wards. It's such a handy size—fits the pocket—and comes in genuine leather (all good colors) with gold edges. Its price is its best feature—89c. You couldn't find a smarter gadget to give your office associates—or for little Willie to give to those Uncle Henrys and Aunt Marys that need remembering. Ward's is at 57 Franklin St.

FurCoats Cleansed $2!

The Original 75c Cleansers are offering this marvelous special for a short time only—so I advise you act quickly on this tip! It is important to know that a natural Pelt tanning process is used there. This process leaves in the Pelts those oils which feed the hairs and keep the fur "alive"! This is the shop that relines your last year's cloth coat for only $5! It's like having a new coat. They supply the material, cleanse, press and reline the coat—all for $5! The Original Cleansers are also noted for their marvelous textile weaving which they do very reasonably. They cleanse and press any garment including evening gowns for only 75c. Fast color dyeing is featured this week for $2! The Original Cleansers' Big Fourth Floor Shop is at 8 Winter St. Other shops at 59 Temple Pl., and 501 Washington Mail orders. Tel. Dev. 7358.

Superfluous Hair

There is only one permanent way to remove this unlovely growth—and that is the electric needle! You've probably found depilatories unsatisfactory besides being a nuisance—And you know "tweezing" only promotes the growth. Do not let anyone but an expert take care of those bristly hairs on your lip, chin or cheek! Miss Elizabeth Sparkes, our electric needle specialist, has the recommendations of physicians—And she has given such satisfaction to her patrons that her fame has spread! Her capable hands remove hair deftly, surely and she uses nothing but Bulbous needles which remove each hair by the root so that is never can return. She has a 40-needle multiple machine for removing hair growth from arms and legs. Consultation free of charge. Miss Elizabeth Sparkes, 120 Tremont St., Room 334. Tel. Hancock 7592.

To the Tips of Her Toes

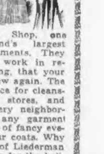
She'll be tickled with these intriguing sandals I've sketched. They lead a double life . . . and a charmed one. She'll wear them with her most swagger evening gown . . . and with her lounging pajamas! They're in smart color combinations, including black with silver or gold, and white. You'll gasp at the price . . . it's so low, $3.95! Of course stockings are on your list and the Queen Quality Boot Shop is the place to go for them. They have a complete selection of unusual hosiery at unusually low prices, from chiffons at 68c, and 89c, to silky meshes at $1.35 to $1.95. Your gift problems will be simple ones if you shop at the Queen Quality Boot shop, 158 Tremont Street.

Evening Gowns, 5.95!

This is a very special value, Anne! Of course, I'm excited about these fascinating evening gowns at this low price—and you will be, too! Mendelsohn's has just made a very special purchase and are able to offer us these evening gowns, that would ordinarily cost us at least $10.75, for only $5.95! I've never expected to see gowns like these at this thrilling price! They are in the newest silhouette—in satin and taffeta. You know Mendelsohn's is that unique shop that rents the most stunning evening gowns that most of us long to own but simply can't afford. By the way, they are revising their stock of used evening gowns and have chosen some to close out at only $1. They also rent new and used evening gowns and wraps, bridal gowns and veils and bridesmaid's outfits. New and used wedding gowns and veils are also for sale. Mendelsohn's is at 59 Temple Place.

Cleansing, 75c

We all have wardrobes that include a dress—a skirt—or a coat, that is perfectly good, yet unwearable, because of torn and worn places; because the length is all wrong, or because the color is faded and streaked. That's why you'll appreciate the marvelous alteration department of the House of Liederman Cleansing Shop, one of New England's largest cleansing establishments. They do such superior work in repairing and altering, that your old clothes look new again. The cash and carry price for cleansing at all their stores, and there's one in every neighborhood, is 75c for any garment with the exception of fancy evening gowns and fur coats. Why not let the House of Liederman brighten your home for the holidays, by cleansing your rugs and curtains, while their prices for this service are so low? The House of Liederman town shops are at 8 Winter street and the North Station. For auto service call Highlands 4000.



Xmas Is So Near

Only 16 days left, in which to do all the things we had planned for this Christmas. Shopping is more fun than ever this year, with the stores brim full of such tempting things, and the price of everything so astonishingly low. You'll want everything you see, in the shops, but to save time and money, read the news in this column carefully, and look for more news next week.

Devotedly,

Priscilla Price

SOCIETY GIRL IN KILLING IS PAL AGAIN OF DAD

Philadelphia, Dec. 7 (AP)—The breach between Rose Allen, 18, society girl, and her father, Horace Allen, which widened after her brother, Edwin, shot to death Francis A. Donaldson, 3rd, has been healed.

Miss Allen and her father have left the home in Haverford of Henry W. Pearce, where they had been staying since the shooting in the Allen apartment at Green Hill Farms Hotel, Nov. 9, and are living together in an apartment.

Miss Allen and Donaldson were friends. The Allens objected to his attentions and the young girl left home after a quarrel. Donaldson went to the Allen apartment to intercede for her, a witness has testified, and was killed by Edwin Allen.

After the shootin, Miss Allen said her father and brother were the cause of the tragedy and she did not want to see them again. The breach between them was widened when the father of a public statemen taaid Donaldson had betrayed his daughter.

During the first days of their stay at the Pearce home relations between father and daughter remained cool, but this attitude softened when the father became ill and she finally made two visits to her brother in the Montgomery County prison, where he is awaiting trial.

GUNS BAR 1500 FROM HOOVER

Hoover. Finally and for all, that's teh best we can do. There is no use arguing further."

Faced with this ultimatum, Benjamin apparently accepted it and returned across the street to get the peition.

POLICE HAVE RIOT GUNS

A police escort went with them as they first marched on the capitol, smoothing their way through the crowds that lined Capitol Plaza, but on the alert for any trouble that might come.

More police, armed with sawed-off shotguns and tear gas bombs, lined the steps of the capitol, were massed about the foot of the Hill and patrolled the White House grounds, another objective of the marchers.

Patrol wagons and ambulances were on hand for emergencies. White House officials decided the demonstrators would not be allowed to pass the gates of the grounds surrounding the executive mansion.

If leaders wish to present a petition to President Hoover, it will be accepted at the gates.

CHANT RED'S HYMN

Singing and shouting "fight for food" the marchers wound slowly around the Peace Monument at the foot of Capitol Hill and started up the roadway leading to the Senate wing.

The band played the "Internationale" as they marched.

As the marchers approached more than 2000 persons lined the plaza in front of the Capitol.

As the procession drew even with the Senate steps, they began singing the "Internationale," a tall Negro in the front ranks swinging his hands to measure time.

They then flashed banners demanding unemployment insurance.

Police Supt. Glassford looked over the banners and decided that none of them was of an inflammatory nature.

Glassford, in full police uniform, rode at the head of the parade.

SENATOR KING REBUFFED

After a delegation had been denied admittance to the Capitol, Senator King, Utah, went to the roped off area in which the demonstrators were gathered and offered to present any petitions they wished to have before the Senate.

"Just who in the hell are you anyway?" Benjamin, one of the leaders, said.

"I am Senator King and will be glad to help you."

"We didn't come here to deal with any individuals," Benjamin returned, "and I don't intend to have you present anything for us."

"Very well," King said, walking away.

They then selected a second delegation of three, with one Negro included, but it also was refused admittance to the Senate wing of the Capitol by Sergeant-at-Arms Barry.

Protesting, they were once more shoved from the door by policemen.

The committee finally gave up the attempt and returned to the massed crowd. Then they headed for the White House.

WAY IS BARRED

After a brief conference with other leaders, however, Benjamin refused to give Jervis a petition, either oral or written.

Flanked by police, Jervis informed them his decision was "absolute and irrevocable," that they should not enter.

While the marchers chanted the Communist anthem and sent up a continuous cry for unemployment insurance, Benjamin, hemmed in on all sides by policemen, told Jervis:

"If the President cannot see even so humble a delegation, we will make our views known in the park across the street."

He referred to Lafayette Park, across the street from the White House grounds.

Throughout the demonstration, crowds lined Pennsylvania ave.

Policemen held three patrol wagons in radiness, and an ambulance waited nearby.

of the country because it is a test of two contract systems—the approach-forcing (Culbertson) system and Mr. Lenz's one-two-three version of the official system. Except for this and the awe-inspiring trappings, the match will be, in almost every respect, just a bridge game.

It will be like the game that Mr. and Mrs. Jones play every Thursday night with Mr. and Mrs. Smith from across the street. The differences will be in a few non-essential details. Radio announcers and microphones, leased telegraph wires, press rooms for the numerous reporters and three official referees together with three honorary referees, will convert my drawing room temporarily into an arena for a contest of apparently national significance.

So far as the one woman who is playing in the match is concerned, however, the various sessions will be a series of bridge games played in my own home.

"ODDS" $5000 to $1000

I feel that Mr. and Mrs. Culbertson have invited in, for several evenings of bridge, Mr. Lenz and Mr. Jacoby. There will be no discussion of the size of the stakes. Whether we will play for ten cents a corner, or just for the fun of the game, will not have to be settled. There is really no wager of money, although, curiously enough, it is played at odds of $5000 to $1000.

Mr. Culbertson's check for $5000 has been deposited with the referee as has Mr. Lenz's check for $1000. If Mr. Curbertson and I win, we have, according to the conditions of the challenge and the terms of the contract, agreed to donate Mr. Lenz's $1000 to the New York Infirmary for Women and Children. If Mr. Lenz wins he, according to the contract, will turn over his winnings to the unemployment fund.

These very wise provisions have put the match on a high plane of a scientific test of two systems of bidding—the approach-forcing system, which Mr. Culbertson and his associate devised, and for which he has given me an undue amount of credit as his collaborator, and the official system, of which Mr. Lenz is the leading and the most expert exponent.

The match will be played as a series of 150 rubbers exactly the same as the Smith-Jones Thursday evening games, except for one unimportant particular.

Instead of playing the cards in the middle of the table, with the tricks stacked, the cards will be played in front of each player. If Mr. Culbertson and I win a trick, we turn our cards face down in front of us with the long way of the card in our direction. If we lose the trick, the long way of the card will be toward our opponents.

CARDS WILL TELL

The cards will be kept carefully in the order of their play and when the 13 tricks have been played, the hand will then be turned over to clerks to be copied and preserved, cruel reminders of our terrible blunders and conceits.

Each of the thousand and one hands, however, will become a record of scientific analysis. Along with the record of the cards held in each hand, there will also be preserved, a record of the bidding and play.

I have had thousands of messages from bridge players in all parts of the country, chiefly women, wishing me success. I deeply appreciate their kindly thought. I think I can detect in some of these messages evidences of family arguments over the relative skill of men and women bridge players.

Except for my most profound hope that Mr. Culbertson and I will win and thereby establish the superiority of the approach-forcing system, my strongest desire is that nothing that I may do may weaken the position of women as leaders in this great intellecutal pastime.

CULBERTSON'S LAST BATTLE

There are very bad bridge players among women, just as there are very bad bridge-playing men. I believe, however, and in this, as in many other points in bridge, Mr. Culbertson agrees with me, that there are more women who are above average in the game than there are men.

I suppose everyone imagines that I am thrilled by this wonderful match. I am not.

Bridge and the public have almost taken my husband away from me and today more than ever, he is far away.

On the day of this, the most important match in which I have ever played, the thing which pleases me most is a promise which Mr. Culbertson has just made to me.

My fondest hope has been that instead of devoting his time exclusively to teaching the world the mechanics of bridge, he would give his splendid mind where it is needed the most, to teaching our children the true mechanics of life.

At last he has promised me that this will be his last big match!

And so I am going to play the best I know how.

a local leader in the fight against the prohibition amendment.

Referee Young filed a report charging that Atty. Welsch had mailed to creditors of Crooker a circular letter including proof of debt and a power of attorney, with the request that both be signed and returned.

The letter stated that Atty Welsch represented a number of creditors and added:

> "My purpose in writing you is not to solicit clients, but to bring about united action on the part of all the creditors by obtaining your permission to employ your claim in conjunction with those of my clients for the election of a suitable trustee."

PRACTICE OPPOSED

Referee Young enclosed a copy of the circular letter with his report, and wrote in part:

> "It is my opinion that the custom of sending circular letters to creditors in bankruptcy cases, soliciting their claims, is contrary to the best practices of the bar and should be discouraged.
> "The use of such a letter, in many cases, might well lead to misrepresentation because by inadvertence the same form might be used in a case where the lawyer sending it out did not in fact represent any creditor at all.
> "In the present case the impression conveyed is that Atty. Welsch represented more than 'one or two' creditors he referred to at the hearing. The custom of sending out circular letters is increasing."

Atty. Welsch has asked the court to overrule Referee Young and appoint him trustee of the estate in place of Atty. Joseph Rosenshine of 161 Devonshire st., who was appointed as a disinterested party.

FREE SERVICE

Another form of circular letter notifies a creditor that a petition in bankruptcy has been filed by or against a certain person or firm, and that he is listed as being owed a specific amount, it was disclosed.

The letter then continues:

> "I am representing a good many of the creditors and if you will fill out the enclosed proof of claim and return it to me, I will take care of this matter WITHOUT CHARGE to you. Please attach itemized bill with proof of claim. I am seeking the trusteeship in this matter."

Armed with powers of attorney representing claims totalling $500 or more, the lawyer then goes into federal court and either seeks the trusteeship for himself or for one of his associates, it was learned.

If one or the other is appointed, which frequently happens, the other members of the group are usually worked in as counsel for trustee, receiver, or in various other capacities, all of which rate fees, the investigation revealed.

By the time all the fees are paid there is very little left for the creditors in many instances.

When a receiver is to be appointed, similar action is taken by the lawyers, it was disclosed, although in either case different methods may be employed.

For example, there is the practice known as "hijacking" receiverships. In such a case a lawyer appears at a hearing on the appointment of a receiver and claims to represent a creditor, although, in fact, he has not been retained. This misrepresentation is possible because it is not necessary for an attorney to file an appearance.

Still another method is the "friendly assignment," which has brought woe to many a merchant and his creditors, it was revealed. In this case a merchant in financial difficulties is located. He is induced to make an assignment for the benefit of creditors. The lawyers then obtain a list of creditors, and have some of them petition the merchant into bankruptcy. The trustee gets a commission, the counsel for the trustee gets a commission, the receiver and his counsel, together with other attorneys employed by creditors, all get commissions, the creditors get about one cent on the dollar and the merchant is ruined.

UNEARTH CLAIMS

Again, it was learned, a merchant may be discovered in difficulties, although not on the verge of going under. In his case, a call to New York, the market which feeds most of the Boston stores, will yield a list of clients selling to the merchant.

These dealers are approached, it was revealed, and informed the merchant is in difficulties. The lawyers obtain claims and the merchant is petitioned into bankruptcy

One lawyer may obtain 15 or 20 claims and another the same amount, with a third having a somewhat lesser number. As the attorney with the largest number of claims is frequently appointed trustee, the lawyers pool their claims and permit the appointment of one of their number. A second may become his counsel and the third receiver, with the fees split [illegible].

Still another method is used in connection with the small business man, it was learned. The lawyers buy up three outstanding obligations of the business man, totalling $500 or more. They then file an involuntary petition of bankruptcy against him, set themselves up as creditors and obtain appointments as receiver, trustee, counsel and so on.

A variation of this method and one less frequently practiced, it was disclosed, is based on a threat to force a small merchant into bankruptcy unless he pays lawyers' fees. As in the other method, three outstanding obligations of the merchant are purchased, and armed with these the lawyer has the business man practically at his mercy, it was found.

As a result of the various practices described, the lawyers in the group, the Boston Evening American found, have succeeded in obtaining control of much of the bankruptcy business in this section.

More about the methods of the "receivership ring" in Boston will be told in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

20 YEARS IN HOSPITAL BED

Helpless Accident Victim Keeps Busy

Passaic, N. J., Dec. 7 (INS)—It will be 20 years next Friday that Thomas Shinners, iron worker, has spent in bed in St. Mary's Hospital with a broken back, arms, legs, fingers and toes.

Although he can not sit up by himself, turn his head or arms more than just a little bit, he is busy.

Since he first recovered consciousness after the boom of a derrick snapped from its base and crashed on him, Shinner has read 3000 books to educate himself in history, literature, economics, politics, philosophy, biology and poetry.

He has written an average of 3000 letters a year, at first dictating them, then when able move his fingers using a typewriter specially placed by his bed.

"The first fifth of a century is the hardest," Shinners said today, and grinned.

LAW OF THE LAND CONCENTRATED IN THIRTY PAGES

By GILBERT SELDES

A FAINT TONE of displeasure comes from the interview on Russian courts given by Mr. F. Buckingham, a lawyer of Kansas City. Using the favorite Soviet word, Mr. Buckingham says the legal profession there has been "liquidated"—adding, in plain English, "extinguished and destroyed." Lawyers, he says, are appointed only to investigate evidence and all judicial decisions are based on a thirty-page booklet "resembling an almanac." The last few words are mystifying enough to draw forth from its obscurity the word "intriguing." How the pamphlet resembles an almanac is not stated; but almanacs, as I recall them, are full of wise saws and modern instances. Possibly Mr. Buckingham means that the almanacs and the pamphlet both have something to do with the inviolable process of reaping what one sows, or perhaps both tend to temper justice with mercy.

What's in the Book?

In the most famous catalogue of human misery (Hamlet's "great" soliloquy) the insolence of office and the law's delay are notably listed. A good deal of printer's ink has flowed over white paper since Shakespeare's time, and much of it has been spent on printing laws by the hundred and by the thousand. What we haven't lost to law we have lost to formula, which has been carried so far that the first purpose of law has been forgotten. In the thirty-page booklet of Russia is there a tradition or precedent which forbids a court to review new evidence? Is it possible for a man convicted on the evidence of a perjurer to get a new trial? If another man confesses to guilt, can the innocent convict be taken out of prison? (In New York a new trial has just begun for a youth who was convicted for a crime which a convicted murderer now confesses, but in Massachusetts, until recently, new evidence could not be brought before a reviewing court.)

The average man, appearing in court, is intimidated by its ritual and baffled by the enormous bulk of law itself. I do not think he will share Mr. Buckingham's irritation over the short book of law which any man can master in a few hours.

Mr. Stimson's Policy

The day the late Dwight Morrow was appointed Ambassador to Mexico a young man of ideas informed me, on the best of authority, that he had been sent there "by Wall Street" to foment a war with Mexico. If that was true, it constitutes Morrow's single (and most honorable) failure. What brings it to mind is the violence of Russian feeling against Secretary Stimson. At home the line of criticism has been that Mr. Stimson has gone too far in checking the advance of the Japanese, that our protests have all been favorable to China, and that we should not be concerned with the unofficial war now going on in the East.

Russia Comments

Pravda, one of the mouthpieces of government in Russia, teaches us our mistake. Stimson, it appears, has been urging on the Japanese, in the hope that a Russo-Japanese war would ensue. Obviously in such a war the United States could not lose—apart from munitions, we should gain by the mutual exhaustion of the enemy nations, eliminating either our chief competitor in the Pacific or our worst enemy on the broad economic field, and probably both. In "realistic politics" this would be a desirable end, and Secretary Stimson would get medals and statues; probably he would also make the first proposals for peace and win the Nobel prize, as Roosevelt did for a similar enterprise.

It still remains obscure why the Japanese were so willing to take offense at Stimson's purported remarks on their policy, why every move he has made has tended to keep the Japanese out of the Russian sphere of influence, and why the general object of his diplomacy seems so pitifully pacifist. Perhaps he doesn't know his own mind; and perhaps Pravda doesn't know his mind either.

Human Nature Again

"I have a peasant persona," writes John Forrest, referring back to H. G. Wells' classification, "and what can I do about it? I want to get a lot of money and to keep a good deal of it in a safe place. I envy, I fear, and I hate. I am a pretty mean type. What are you and Mr. Wells going to do about it? Can you change human nature in general and mine in particular?"

Mr. Forrest is trying to tell me that he feels no call to dedicate his life to anything higher than a 12-room duplex apartment, lots of good liquor and a yacht. I suspect him of trying to trap me into evangelism, as if his soul mattered to me. Happily I do not have to do anything about him, and happily Mr. Wells has answered his question. On page 432 of "The Work, Wealth and Happiness of Mankind," he writes:

"Eppure Si Muove"

"It is no good saying nowadays that 'man has always been so and so, and always will be so and so,' meaning that he must remain forever an ignorant, limited, pitiful, disastrous fudger. Human biology knows better. We can trace our escape from dream to ordered thinking. We can trace the spreading subjugation of life to ordered thinking. We see all about us the struggle of the human mind to escape from . . delusions to . . . methods of thought. Science spreads into all human concerns, changing spirit as well as method. What science, with quite small resources, has done in a century or so in establishing a progressive order throughout a large part of the field of possible knowledge, all mankind in a century or so can do for all the affairs of earth."

It is, in fact, central to Wells' thought that human nature has changed, can be changed, and must change. The first he proves by a study of the past, and he deduces the second from the first. But a new element enters with the third—the compulsion on us to change human nature, to destroy the peasant and create the devoted, selfless, "priestly" character. Twenty years ago Wells aspired to a better world; he wrote, concurrently with his novels of the present, books about Utopias. He tried to make his Utopias as interesting as London in 1910 (although nothing he ever wrote had the excitement and glamor, the frenzy and cheer of life, as much as Tono-Bungay). He said to us, "Wouldn't you like to live in an orderly world?" and we said, emphatically, "No!"

The new tone is the tone of desperation and command. He is no longer asking us. He is telling us, with impressive proof, that if we do not change, the world goes under and we with it. He no longer talks about pleasant green lands; he talks about the minimum surrender we have to make if we are to keep going at all.

TOM MIX ✦ Home Full of Trophies ✦ ---by DOROTHY ROE

TOM MIX and VICTORIA FORDE in an EARLY FILM

TOM MIX ENTERED THE MILLIONAIRE CLASS AND HAD HIS CHANCE TO INDULGE HIS LITTLE-BOY LOVE FOR THE SPECTACULAR. HE BEGAN DESIGNING THE AMAZING COSTUMES IN WHICH HE APPEARED.

TOM MIX, WIFE and DAUGHTER

TOM HAD ALL HIS WIFE'S CLOTHES CUT UP AND MADE INTO BOUDOIR PILLOWS.

"It was in a little motion picture theater in Glendale, Cal., where I first gazed on Victoria Forde. Her mother, a character actress, had been making some pictures with me, and I went to see one. Outside she introduced me to her daughter, Victoria, who was just a girl in her 'teens with a lot of golden hair—a little thing she was, too, not much bigger than a minute. I stood there looking at her and wondering how I'd lived all those years without her and how I was ever going to live another day longer if she wouldn't have me." Tom Mix made Victoria his leading woman, playing in Wild West films produced by his own company, and in 1917 they were married.

It was the year after his second marriage that Tom Mix signed as a star with Fox Films, and entered the millionaire class. It was then he had his big chance to indulge his little-boy love for the spectacular, and began designing the amazing costumes in which he appeared both on and off the movie lot. He built a palatial home for Victoria in the movie actors' paradise, Beverly Hills, and had his famous T. M. brand in electric lights on each gate. The hall of the Tom Mix home is full of saddles and lariats, sombreros and cowboy trophies. But upstairs all is French boudoirs and drawing room hung with rare tapestries and rich silks.

The three Mixes were happy in this Hollywood setting for a while. But soon it became apparent that a rift was slowly widening between Tom and Victoria. Perhaps it is the fate of the movie colony that no marriage can stay put for long. But Victoria Forde Mix packed up and left the Beverly Hills home a number of times before she finally presented Tom with a Christmas gift in the form of a divorce decree, last Christmas Eve. There is no doubt that the marital break affected Tom Mix deeply. There is the little story of the boudoir pillows, for instance. On one of her sudden departures Victoria left all her evening dresses hanging in her closet.

And Tom, perhaps as a means of retaliation, had them all cut up and made into frilly pillows. Chiffons and taffetas, pastel satins and delicate crepes, they appeared as coverings on half a hundred pillows that decorated Victoria's boudoir. And when Tom had visitors he would show them through the house, stop in the boudoir and say: "See that little heart-shaped pillow? It's made of the skirt of my wife's favorite dancing dress." Or—"Do you remember when Victoria wore this to Cocoanut Grove?"

The final chapter in this thrilling series will be printed Tomorrow.

CHRISTMAS AID ASKED BY GIRL FOR FAMILY

Out of the baskets of misery, of suffering and a hope and appeal, the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund editor picks at random today a letter from a North End girl, who is acting as "little mother" for her nine brothers and sisters.

It speaks more eloquently as a letter itself than any mere comment upon it could speak. Here it is—from Josephine, whose heart is heavy in misfortune, but who still hopes:

"I am writing in hope that I will receive a basket. We have 10 children in the house. I am the oldest girl in the family.

ONE BOY WORKING

"We have no father and the eldest boy is 13, and he is the only one working. He works three or four days a week.

"We have no fuel in the house. It is so cold that the children cry and also we have but little food. We have rent, doctor's, gas, electric and other bills overdue.

"Mother is sick in bed and she needs good food. I hope you will help us. I am writing for mother, so I hope you will make me happy. I do not go to school because mother is always so sick and besides she couldn't afford to send me to high school. I stay in all day and help mother."

That's the plea of Josephine, the "little mother"—and who could resist it?

The appeal of Josephine for her little brothers and sisters—and her bedridden mother—is listed as Case No. 22 in the Christmas Basket Fund. If you wish to give aid through the Basket Fund, you may do so, or if you wish to aid personally you may have the name and address.

Be a Goodfellow, for this is not a selected case, but one at random and one that is matched time and again in privation and want, and actual suffering.

ANYTHING HELPS

Think it over, Goodfellows.

The Christmas Basket Fund editor needs more help—lots of it—and it cannot come too soon for planning the relief of the needy.

Don't think that because you cannot give $100 or $50 or $25 or $10 that your help will not be appreciated. Anything you can spare to aid poor people at Christmas will be welcome, for many small contributions roll up into a large total.

Many letters of appeal are pouring in steadily with each day—from distracted mothers, from worried and heart-aching fathers, from grandparents and from children.

The Christmas Basket Editor at 5 Winthrop sq., Boston, also wishes to urge reputable organizations, clubs, church societies to investigate families in their districts and to submit the names, addresses and the number of persons in needy and eligible families where baskets should be sent.

New Chevrolets to Carry Entertainers

Twenty new 1932 De Luxe Chevrolet sedans will transport various entertainers from theaters and clubs to Boston Garden for tonight's big show in aid of the Boston American Christmas Basket Fund. These cars, together with the services of 20 expert drivers, are being contributed by Howard J. Walsh, Boston zone director of Chevrolet Motor Company.

Mr. Walsh will be assisted in his task of getting the performers to the Garden on time by William J. Graveson, metropolitan sales director of the company, who personally will supervise all details.

CHRISTMAS OPPORTUNITIES FOR BOSTON GOODFELLOWS

HERE ARE SOME MORE Christmas "Opportunities" for the Goodfellows of Greater Boston. Each day a list of appeals will be printed by the Evening American in conjunction with its Christmas Basket Fund. Goodfellows are asked to read these appeals and investigate those they wish to help. Addresses will be given by calling the American Christmas Basket Editor, Liberty 4000.

CASE No. 15

Please send me a basket for Christmas. My husband has been out of work for a long, long time. We will not have anything unless you send us something for Christmas. We are poor and hungry for food. Please send us a basket. I have eight children to feed and clothe, and I would like for you to send us something to eat for Christmas. They are very much in need of clothes also. My oldest girl is 13 years old. She is a girl who needs stockings for Christmas. She hasn't had a pair of new shoes since Easter. Please send us a basket, Good Editor.

This woman lives in Roxbury. Anyone wishing to investigate the case may call or write the Christmas Basket Fund Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for Case No. 15.

CASE No. 19

I want to know if you could send us a Christmas basket. My mother is dead, and my father is not working. There is four children, three girls and one boy. I would like very much if you could send us one.

This little boy lives in Boston. Anyone wishing to investigate the case may call or write the Christmas Basket Fund Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for Case No. 19.

CASE No. 21

Would you please send me a dinner for Christmas, as my husband hasn't worked for six months. There are four in the family, and we will not have any dinner if you forget us. You may come and investigate if you wish, as we are very much in need at present. We would be very grateful for any kindness you would show us.

This mother lives in Boston. Anyone wishing to investigate the case may call or write the Christmas Basket Fund Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for Case No. 21.

CASE No. 24

I am the oldest of 13 children and my father has been loafing for one year and we find it very hard to get along. I am 18 years old and my brother is 16 and between us we can barely keep food and pay rent. The children need shoes and clothes very much.

They are always asking what Santa is going to bring them, and I always say he is going to bring them the things they ask for, but that is not true. There isn't even a thought of him coming in my eyes. I hope that some good fellow will take heed to my letter and try to make them happy with a few clothes they need.

The baby just came home from the hospital after being poisoned. My poor mother is all weakened by thinking and crying to cheer my father who is desperate. He feels that way because he isn't able to do the right thing by his children. So I will close now and do hope that someone will help us to be happy on Christmas day.

This girl lives in Roxbury. Anyone wishing to investigate the case may call or write the Christmas Basket Fund Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for Case No. 24.

CASE No. 25

I am going to ask if you would please help my mother. She just came home from the hospital the day before Thanksgiving. She was sick with pneumonia and collapsed right lung. She is very weak and has to have rest and good food.

There is only a half mattress on her bed and no mattress on my brothers' bed. There are five children, three girls, 16-14-5 years, and two boys, 11 and 9 years. My father has been out of work a long time.

My little brother died the 22d of October. My mother went to the hospital after that, and she is so sad all the time. She never smiles. If someone will just cheer her up. She needs a winter coat or anything at all would help, just as long as she is happy.

The American sent us a basket last Christmas and we were very thankful. We live on the top floor.

This little girl lives in South Boston. Anyone wishing to investigate the case may call or write the Christmas Basket Fund Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for Case No. 25.

CASE NO. 26

I am in need of a Christmas Basket and clothing very bad. We have 11 children in my house and they are all out of work. They all want to eat so I am afraid they won't have much to eat, and clothing for the coming Christmas, unless some kind person would help us. I wrote you people last year and I appreciate you people for what you have sent me and I hope you do not forget me this year.

One of my daughters has just come out of the hospital from being sick. I've had lots of bad luck this year. You can imagine what a time I've been having with my children sick one by one, and not only that, they didn't have much to eat and not much clothes to wear, and also without coal and wood. I had a little wood and used it while my children were sick, so I wish some helping hand would help me, and I will never forget you and appreciate this and what you have done for me last year and thank you very much for your kindness.

This mother lives in Somerville. Anyone wishing to investigate the case may call or write the Christmas Basket Fund Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for Case No. 26.

CASE No. 27

I just ran across your list in the paper and it was a Godsend. I have three children, myself and my wife. I have been out of work for almost two years. We did not even have a thing for Thanksgiving. But I am hoping and praying you will send us a basket for Christmas. Also I have a son who goes to school and he is seven years old. I had to take him out of school last week for he had no shoes to put on. He wears a size 13 or 13½. If anyone could help out it would be greatly appreciated, too.

Also a little girl about four years old needs shoes and clothes; also my younger son needs clothes. He is five years old. Anything will be appreciated very much indeed, sir. Can anyone help us out?

I, the father, struggle on trying to get by doing pick-up jobs, but it does not give me much, so can you please at least send me a Christmas basket of food to make it somewhat of a happy Christmas for the kids. I understand you are so considerate to the poor and needy on that day, I feel at this special time of the year a little joy will go a long way and those in return will receive a blessing and years of sunshine. So I do appeal to you in the name of Christianity, please help us as a family who will appreciate a Christmas basket of food.

Hoping and praying and looking forward to a little bit of happiness and sunshine, I shall close.

This man lives in Malden. Anyone wishing to investigate the case may call the Christmas Basket Fund Editor, Liberty 4000, or write to 5 Winthrop sq., and ask for Case No. 27.

RIVER OF BEER FLOODS DIVES IN LAWRENCE

This is the seventh of a series on conditions at Lawrence.

By THE MASKED REPORTER

(Copyright, 1931, by the Boston Evening American)

The South Lawrence breweries have been closed for several months. But Old Beer River still goes rollin' along.

Before the closing of the breweries, the industry already had a start in apartments, vacant stores and basements. But when the prohibition authorities acted last July they drove virtually the whole beer-making business into these places.

Ten or more of these tenement blocks are in the hands of the "Big Seven," and the syndicate has found a way, as I shall relate, to control or at least to cut in on the revenue of many more places.

One of the syndicate has a controlling interest in large retail estate holdings, which make him for all practical purposes the landlord of numerous home-brewing plants.

BIG STORAGE PLANT

His control also extends to a South Lawrence storage plant, where not only beer and alcohol but also many thousands of dollars worth of home-brew ingredients and manufacturing paraphernalia are stored.

The beer these breweries produced was widely popular, and the trade was highly lucrative to the three members of the "Big Seven" who controlled the ownership of one brewery even to the extent of guaranteeing the real owners against loss of income in the event of padlocking by the federal authorities.

They did not limit themselves to beer, however. For many months they supplied well-established speakeasies having a moneyed clientele, a number of which were in Boston, with what was generally supposed even by the most sophisticated to be genuine Canadian ale.

IMMENSE PROFITS

Manufactured at a cost of about nine cents a bottle, this ale retailed in the high class speakeasies and clubs in Lawrence and other communities, within a radius of 30 miles, at $1.75 and $2 a quart flagon.

Bottles identical in physical appearance with the Canadian flagon were manufactured and delivered to this brewery, as were labels and caps, helping the product to masquerade successfully until a raid disclosed the actual source of the "imported" ale.

Today all this is ended. But the beer crowd found a way of keeping the stream of beer flowing.

They turned to home brew, which offered the advantage of greater safety to themselves. And what they lost in having to abandon their former profitable trade in the widely demanded "Lawrence beer," they saved by elimination of overhead costs and expenses of operation.

Harvard students are among the customers for the present poorer product, drinking it with gusto according to my information, apparently on the strength of the reputation that the brewery beer had gained among the college boys.

Some blind tigers in the central part of the city, catering mostly to a beer trade, are situated in spots where they are able to rent tenements or other space to manufacture their fluid and bring it to their retail premises with little or no outside observation.

UNDERGROUND PASSAGE

I found a popular and well known speakeasy on South Union st., the owners of which rent a store two doors away where their manufacturing is carried on. They have exclusive use of the cellar between the two stores and have built a passageway connecting the basements of the two places that they occupy.

As an illustration of how complaints can cause trouble, I might cite the case of a group of single-car garages in South Lawrence, on South Union st., which have been under surveillance by government men for more than three weeks.

These garages, I understand, are owned by a highly respected Lawrence resident but have been rented for a long period by the beer baron. The constant traffic in and out of these garages during the night caused a resident to enlist the aid of Washington authorities by sending small photographs of trucks with empty alcohol cans backed up in the yard.

This same beer lord controls two of the most profitable malt, hop and supply shops in the city, which he has operated for several years. When the home brew trade had its big development, he quickly recognized the possibilities from this angle. By furnishing complete manufacturing plants on time payments, and in some instances arranging to purchase and dispose of the product of these plants, he was able to tap the revenue from this industry and drain a good part of it off into his own pocket.

(The Masked Reporter will make further disclosures of conditions at Lawrence in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.)

Man Held as Fake Legion Collector

Alleged by Everett police to have victimized numerous Greater Boston business firms of hundreds of dollars' worth of supplies by posing as a member of the American Legion, a man was captured in Everett during the weekend when he made a second visit to a Main st. chocolate concern.

The man is Robert W. Megarry, alias McQuarrie, 33, of South Walnut st., Quincy, police say.

Retired Teacher and Wife Are Injured

Rockport, Dec. 7—Frederick P. Smith of Annisquam, a retired teacher, was critically injured when his auto skidded last night while he was driving here from Pigeon Cove, crashed through a guard fence and toppled down a 30-foot embankment.

Smith's wife was with him, but she escaped with slight injuries. Both are in Addison Gilbert Hospital in Gloucester.

Yale Students' Poll Favors League Court

New Haven, Ct., Dec. 7 (INS)—Yale undergraduates favor adherence of the United States to the League court and America's joining the League of Nations, a disarmament poll, conducted by the Yale Daily News, showed today.

Compulsory military training should not be dropped in colleges and optional military training should not be dropped from the Yale curriculum, according to the poll.

Lively Battles in Taunton Election

Taunton, Dec. 7—There is unusual interest in the city election here tomorrow, especially in the fight between Willis K. Hodgman, Jr., present mayor, and Dr. Andrew J. McGraw, a former mayor. It is a non-partisan election and there is no party designation on the ballot.

There are eight candidates in the field for the four places on the council and six candidates for the three places on the school board.

Boy Leader Slept in Bed; Gang on Floor

Cleveland, Dec. 7—Seven young runaways, the eldest 17 years old, came to grief after a short career of crime under the leadership of a self-styled "Little Caesar." Police said they confessed to 17 robberies.

"Sure I sleep in the bed and my gang sleeps on the floor, in one room," the 15-year-old leader, "Little Caesar," told detectives.

Parched or toasted? No, sir!

CAMELS are FRESH!

THE bedrock of Camel popularity is the inherently fine quality of the tobaccos that go into our cigarette.

These tobaccos are notably mild, full-mellow, delicately flavored by nature — the finest Turkish and mild, sun-ripened Domestic tobaccos that money can buy.

To safeguard the essential goodness of these fine tobaccos we exercise every care to conserve their natural moisture and natural flavors.

They are never parched or toasted — the Reynolds method of scientifically applying heat guarantees against that.

That's why we say Camels are made fresh to start with—and why the Camel Humidor Pack can bring them fresh to you, in prime smoking condition.

If you want to know what a blessing that means in unalloyed smoke-enjoyment, switch to Camels for just one day — then leave them—if you can.

The unmarried Hollywood Restaurant nudies have been asked to pledge themselves not to elope during the run of the present show . . . The Charlie Van Vlecks, Jr., (She's Natalie Johnson of the soap millions) after all these years are drifting.

Emanuel Hertz's forthcoming tome on Abraham Lincoln makes certain veiled hints about a hitherto unknown tragedy in the Emancipator's domestic life that will probably bring a storm of protest down on the author's head...Val Rich, the Croonader, is off to Montreal to get a bevy of tonsils blasted...Gals who look alike: Peaches Browning, authoress, ex-housewife and actress—and Alva Larsen, Harry Green's blond hottotot...Walgreen's is planning 50 more drug stores in Manhattan, expecting to cash in on the increase in headaches... And maybe I couldn't use an aspirin right now! ..You can buy yachts pretty cheap these days, if that means anything.

Following our assertion that a cigarette wrapped in cellophane can be twisted into a knot without breaking, several readers write in to tell us that a cigar wrapped in the glossed paper can be trampled upon without breaking either... That elderly widow who inherited a 'ock of millions some years ago is otting around the night spots ain with her tall, youthful gigolo Earl Carroll is still hesitating about opening that night club... Incidentally, plans are under way to reopen the Terrace Club, atop the St. Moritz, on a grander scale... The Hollywoodiots are trying to separate Nils Asther and Vivian Duncan because they saw him out alone one night...They're as bad Broadway columnists, those folks out West...That wasn't a new excavation in Times Square Tuesday night...It was merely the doorman at the Rialto yawning in the midst of his ballyhoo...Ada Mae and her pneumonia have parted...Short story about Mrs. H. G. of lower Park avenue... Went high at a local club Monday nite; went s'kee in cab; lost her upper teeth—and Heavinks, how she misses them...These radio folks—five of the biggest names on the air, three gals and two gents, don't talk to each other, each insisting the other's aping him or her...And on top of that, two of the town's radio colyumists are bringing suit against the manager of a star because he insisted they were collecting for plugging names ...Gosh, when a colyumist sues, instead of being sued, that's news, take it from me!

Clap calloused mitts for Will Cuppy's hilarious tome, "How to Tell Your Friends from the Apes" (Liveright) Russel (Buck) Crouse's large and grandly illustrated book, "It Seems Like Yesterday," especially that naughty (sic) bathing beauty pic on p. 24—those reckless gals...A tuneful melody, "Fate Introduced Me to You," by Marion Rosette and Charles Halle (Song Hit Guild)...Gefulte fish with white horseradish at Dinty Moore's... "The Champ," still the best picture in town (in my opinion, so make the most of it)...Sophie Tucker's brand new dress (the gal must be in the money)...

Emma Haig—remember her from musical comedy days?—has been married all these days to Art Fowler, the singer, and now they're opening an antique shop . . . Harriet Hilliard, the blonde mistress of ceremonies at Hollywood Restaurant, is trying to find Roy Sedley, the comic, to let him know she's having the marital tie severed . . . When Russ Columbo, who came out of the West a few month's ago, without a nickel, opens at the Waldorf, December 14th, his total earnings will be $6750 a week—and the kid's only 23 . . . And now a leading crooner is about to be sued by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers . . . It's getting to be a fever, these suits . . . To the scores of readers asking for the solution to the Sidney Lenz checker stunt—giving an opponent twelve men, keeping three and beating him in seventeen moves . . . The trick will be exposed in this column some day this week.

Albie Booth, the Yale grid star, has a dozen offers to work for millionaire fathers of schoolmates but has snubbed them all, to date . . . They stared and stared at Norma Talmadge and George Jessel in Reuben's the other morning—so we stared, too . . . They were dunking! . . . The first six-button tuxedo in town is being worn by Joey Ray, the singing juvenile—so he sez . . . Shakeup on weekly mag shortly . . . Local managers will tell you that whenever Clark Gable appears in a picture, an army of mashers invades the lobbies—banking on the Gable draw for women.

Chinatown After Dark" Has Punch for Park Patrons

"Chinatown After Dark," with a title reminiscent of ye olden me, sets up a speed and a camera play that commend it above a reat many latter day pictures. It is packed with drama of the meller" variety, but is nicely directed, so that it should be fine entertainment for the thrill fans. It ets in a number of punches and olds its suspense excellently. The tory deserves a better, certainly more intriguing title.

The key is a Chinese dagger, he hilt of which conceals a supposedly priceless ruby. Brought o America, this dagger acts upon the human beings in the melodrama much as the brush does in a fox hunt; intricacies of plot are many, but they are never confusing. The harassed heroine gets plenty of sympathy, and she finally emerges happy as a butterfly out of its chrysalis stage.

Carmel Myers tops a pretty good cast, which has Rex Lease, Barbara Kent, and Edmund Breese. The film is one of the best the Park Theater has had in some weeks.

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Startling claims of the Women's rganization for National Pro-ibition Reform are made by rs. Charles H. Sabin of New ork, national chairman, at a eeting of the National Executive Committee in Detroit, and ictured in the current issue of earst Metrotone News, now at Loew's State. Among other things Mrs. Sabin declares:

"You will be delighted to hear that although the W. C. T. U. has been in existence for 60 years, our membership exceeds theirs. We now have a total of 411,410 women enrolled on our lists."

Mrs. John S. Shepard, New York State chairman, declares:

"With common sense and facts on our side the organization feels sure it will win the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment."

The racing season at Bowie, Md., is closed with an exciting contest for the benefit of the unemployed in that state. In spite of rain, fog and mud a great crowd attends the charity race to see the horses plunging through the mire. The bell ringers of St. Peter's in Rome are no more. For the first time in history the bells are rung by an electric robot that swings them back and forth with unfailing regularity.

President and Mrs. Hoover are serenaded on the White House steps by the choir of the Capital University, Columbus, O. One of the biggest swimming and diving carnivals ever held in the West is put on at Palm Springs, Cal. A picture of fun and frolic shows Paris midinettes celebrating the festival of St. Catherine.

150 Marines Are Guests at Loew's State Show

One hundred and fifty marines, composing the detachment at the Charlestown Navy Yard, under the command of Lieut.-Col. W. T. Hoadley, are guests of Manager Joseph H. Brennan of Loew's State this afternoon to see Lawrence Tibbett in "The Cuban Love Song." The film finds Tibbett and his fellow players, Jimmy "Schnozzle" Durante and Ernest Torrence, as marines adventuring in Cuba.

Record Crowds at Keith's Tribute to Direction of James Whale

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

What is it? "Frankenstein" presents the riddle, but doesn't furnish the answer. What will explain the queues which have been forming morning, afternoon and night at the Keith box offices? Why this tremendous appeal to the movie fan? The film, so far as the theater-going public goes, doesn't submit to measurement by the old terms.

* * *

Before it reached the exhibitor, one's guess could easily have been that it was doomed. Or else destined to triumph. Depending wholly upon the guesser. Who, anyway, can infallibly "feel" the public's whims? They are like the wind that bloweth where it listeth, and man knoweth the what-next? What is it in "Frankenstein" that has them standing up in the mammoth Memorial playhouse? Is it the pure horror of the theme and treatment? The thrills? The acting?

James Whale

WHAT IS IT?

Basically, Frankenstein's" merit as cinema is in the able direction of James Whale, the Englishman who made "Journey's End" an outstanding talkie. Half a dozen German or Russian directors could have succeeded as well; but fewer at Hollywood could have turned the trick. Whale knows how to say it with the camera, how to weave in his minimized dialogue deftly, knows his lights and shadows, how to play his characters, human or otherwise. He has fashioned a fine picture, considered as a film in which the sound effects are properly leavened into the silent drama.

But ordinarily, one would believe the theme repellent, perhaps abhorrent. Seeking to analyze the appeal of "Frankenstein," we questioned many who had seen the photoplay.

The answer from one and all was the same:

Thrills, and goose-flesh, and hair-raising!

So that is what it is; a change, something new under the cinema's sun, a grewsome sop to the craving for the novel, the strange, the weird, the nerve-wracking, the horrible!

Hollywood, with its wonted haste to chase after the leader, may now be expected to evolve a long run of such ventures—till the time the movie public tires of them, as it did of the overdone gangster pictures, and the rest.

Meanwhile, "Frankenstein" is still "packing 'em" in.

Star Acts Register at Boston

"Nice Women" on screen and a good bill on stage make up the RKO Boston's show this week. The vaudeville is excellent entertainment, with fine balance as the keynote. Exceedingly clever are the Diamond Boys, Tom, Harold and Hugh. Their turn is titled "Free and Easy," and freely and easily they dance and dispense their witty sayings. The trio get a big hand and go over big.

Applause greets the Keller Sisters and Lynch, the three being sisters and brothers. Their fame already established in radioland, they score nicely with their songs, which they render satisfactorily.

Instrumental music is the offering of Galla-Rini and Sister. These two try their hands on a number of instruments and play with marked ability, to the great delight of the audience. Other good acts are those of Hal Nieman, "Vagabond Rover," who wins the laughs with his patter; and the Zelda Brothers who open with a clever exhibition of aerial work.

"Nice Women" is fairly pleasant to see and hear. It is light, sometimes frothy, and its appeal is chiefly as a screen exposition of the heart affairs of younger folk. The principal players are Sidney Fox, Frances Dee, Alan Mowbray, Russell Gleason and Carmel Myers.

Double Bill at Fenway, Modern

The Fenway and Modern have a double bill of two new films, "Surrender" and "Working Girls." In the former Warner Baxter and Leila Hyams furnish the love interest, and probably the admirers of both will flock to see them in their make-believe romance. The screen is seeped with sentimentality, with a result that the movie "goes into low" and never attains the speed needed for action.

Baxter is seen as a French soldier, a prisoner in a German war camp. He and some pals escape and find refuge in a nearby castle, the owner of which is none other than our able thespian, C. Aubrey Smith. His ward, played by Miss Hyams, falls head over heels in love with the poilu Baxter, her country's foe. But patriotism falls to the rear, the heart is supreme. So the story goes on, and on, with the couple necking and petting away under the moon and the stars up to the happy ending.

The story is here the drawback; so the actors perform in a perfunctory way, and matters never seem very lively.

The companion picture is much brighter in spirit, with jazzy angles that should appeal to the women. Perhaps there will be much interest in the fact that herein Miss Ethel Barrymore's older son, Samuel, makes his film bow; he is seen briefly. Principals are the able Paul Lukas, Frances Dee, Judith Wood, Buddy Rogers, Stuart Erwin, Dorothy Hall, and our old friend, Alberta Vaughn.

INCREDULOUS

Joan Crawford, bewildered heroine of M-G-M's "Possessed," at Loew's Orpheum.

Actors Are in on the Laugh

There are two kinds of comedians; those who have the ability to convulse the audience behind the footlights, and those who are funny off-stage as well as on. Of the latter is George Hassell, comic star of "The Student Prince" which is at the Shubert.

Ambitious comics have been known to study their witticisms so as to impress those who meet them outside the theater. This class is something like Oscar Wilde, who studied the witty epigrams during the day to let them fall trippingly at night. This studied brilliancy of small talk does not attach to Hassell, however, who is noted for his wit off-stage.

Friends from the professional and lay world flock to his dressing-room. George Hassell once mimicked a young singer at an amateur performance, with one eye on the audience and the other on the impending "hook." In his fright, his voice failed the top note, and he whistled it.

Howard Theater

The Carnera-Campolo fight pictures will be screened at the Howard at 3:40 this afternoon and at 9:30 tonight.

8000 Attend Concert in Garden

By MOSES SMITH

The first of the Boston Garden concerts, featuring the Civic Symphony Orchestra under Thompson Stone, was given under favorable auspices last night, with some 8000 persons in attendance, the largest Boston audience that ever went to a concert indoors, according to Mayor Curley, who spoke briefly.

The program was far from being a "symphony" program, for only the first movement of Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony represented the great classical form. But with so popular an opening number as Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever," and with the "Blue Danube" Waltz for a finale, the assortment of light concert pieces and operatic selections (a heavy overture or two thrown in), was, perhaps, ideally suited to the miscellaneous tastes of an audience of thousands.

Yet the applause of the throngs left no doubt that its favorite selections were those that Reinald Werrenrath, baritone, sang. Scheduled to sing only two numbers, he added another pair, and after the last the audience applauded for several minutes before it was fully satisfied that the singer's "No" meant "No." The "1812" Overture of Chaikovsky, in which Arthur Fiedler was guest conductor, was also favorably received.

It is unfair to judge the merits of the performance by what one heard last night, because of the extremely freaky nature of the amplification. Apparently the management was experimenting with various electrical combinations, placement of microphones and so forth. The results were in no case quite satisfactory; and when the amplifiers were completely shut off, the orchestra was not sufficiently audible for the huge auditorium. What remains clear is that these experiments—if they were such—should have been carried out more fully at rehearsals.

Otherwise the orchestra, under Mr. Stone's baton, played with reasonable precision, volume and quality of tone.

The concert of Fritz Kreisler, violinist, attracted a large crowd to Symphony Hall yesterday, though, as in the case of his concert earlier in the year, the hall was not quite sold out. In a program consisting of Bach's D minor Concerto, Bruch's G minor Concerto, and a group of miscellaneous short pieces, the violinist exhibited his familiar mastery of his instrument and his art.

Sidney Franklin Picked to Direct Norma Shearer in "Smilin' Thru"

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor
(Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Los Angeles, Dec. 7—Seldom does a director repeat himself in a picture. Sidney Franklin, who directed Norma Talmadge in "Smilin' Thru," one of the sweetest plays of all time, will direct Norma Shearer in the talking version of the same story. Sidney acquitted himself so admirably in "Private Lives," Miss Shearer's latest picture, that there never was any question who would direct this play which requires subtlety, delicacy and beauty.

Louella O. Parsons

"Smilin' Thru" will be a new departure for Norma Shearer who has been the exponent of smart, sophisticated roles. I might add the successful exponent. But since the trend of the times seem to be in favor of sweet, sentimental stories, never let it be said that Irving Thalberg is behind the times when it comes to selecting stories for his talented young wife.

One thing Will Hays emphasized when he was in Hollywood was the desire of the film companies to get away from cycles. Variety, he urged, is necessary to maintain a universal interest. There is such restraint where newspaper stories are concerned. Almost every day we hear of some company or other either condemning or glorifying the Fourth Estate. Either way is bad for newspapers. We don't want our profession to be made too holy and neither do we want it to be made ridiculous. Here are two coming newspaper stories that are promised as a happy medium. "Ambition," which Russell Mack directs for Columbia is one. The other is a First National tale called "Circulation" based on an original by Courtney Terrett. Possibly "Circulation" will take the bad taste of "Five Star Final" out of our mouths. Here's hoping.

We are all gasping over Clara Bow's latest escapade. Not that I am one to call marriage an escapade, but it really came as a surprise although Clara told this writer she would marry Rex Bell as soon as she had recovered her health. At that time, I must admit, I didn' take her seriously. Clara has been in love so many times, even after she announced her intention of marrying the former cowboy she was seen with another well known actor. She explained this by saying he was a friend of Rex Bell. I, for one, am glad she married Rex Bell. He is a nice lad and his influence on the red-haired Brooklyn gal has always been good. Married, Clara will be less reckless and well, if she makes one good picture she will be riding on the crest of the wave. The fans have never ceased asking for Clara.

How will Rose Hobart rank at the end of 1932? She is an accomplished actress but I don't know that she has that certain something that clicks with the movie audiences. Carl Laemmle however seems to feel that her artistic ability is of such a high order that, come what may, she will continue to be a favorite. He has purchased "Adventure Lady" for her, a play by Dale Collin. 'Tis the tale of a girl who sells herself for gold. Ernest Frank will direct it for Universal. His is a new name as far as I am concerned. You have no idea how much new blood there is in this industry of ours. I used to flatter myself I knew personally every actor and director—but no more.

Rose Hobart

Tip to Wall Street on Films Is Given by Miss Parsons

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Of all the recent articles that have been written on high finance and motion pictures none has seemed to me as pertinent and explicit as Arthur Brisbane's Today column of December 2. Mr. Brisbane says: "High finance which puts hundreds of millions into pictures wishes it had its money out and is wondering how to get it out. The answer is nothing but a natural-born moving-picture man can do it. No high pressure, efficiency person can deal with the gamut of temperament that stretches from John Barrymore to John Gilbert and from Mary Pickford to Greta Garbo."

If only some of these New York bankers will read this and profit! True, there should be changes in the studios, we admit, but it's the height of absurdity to send a man from New York who knows nothing about making pictures or handling stars. If New York will let Winfield Sheehan alone and co-operate rather than put a man in the studios as they have done to supervise his actions, Fox will weather the storm without difficulty.

Madelon Claudet on Bowdoin Sq. Program

Another fine film bill, coupled with seven acts of vaudeville, is viewed at the Bowdoin Square. "The Sin of Madelon Claudet," with Helen Hayes, is the principal picture. Tonight a souvenir photograph of Miss Hayes will be given to each patron. Another film shows Babe Daniels in "Honor of the Family." The new master of ceremonies is Ray Gilbert. The Dare Sisters and English have a singing and musical specialty.

'PICKS ON TINY' BOYS; KILLED

Detroit, Dec. 7 (AP)—A group of newsboys plotted revenge in their haymow clubhouse on 15year-old Joe Przystas, who had been accused of "pickin' on little kids," and a few hours later "Little Joe" was killed by a rifle bullet.

Stanley Orlenowski, 14, president of the organization known as the "Floyd Club," admitted to police he fired the shot, but insisted he meant only to frighten Joe.

He said he had borrowed the rifle as he, Joseph Sawiski, 14, and Anthony Mazur, 14, members in good standing, were on their way to carry out the club's verdict that "Little Joe" should be taught a lesson.

The three boys and Longin Jendzyenski, 11, who had accused Joe of "pickin' on him," are held in the juvenile detention home. County Prosecutor Toy said today he would ask that they be required to facec harges in criminal court.

Joe was an honor student in intermediate school. He sold papers outside school hours and, except for a small pension, provided the only income for his mother and two sisters.

ADS TO BOOST 1932 BUSINESS

New York, Dec. 7 (AP)—The board of directors of the Advertising Federation of America announced today that a national survey indicates that the 1932 advertising dollar will bring better results than at any time during the past two years.

Gilbert T. Hodges, president of the organization, said the survey shows a growing confidence in 1932 merchandising possibilities.

He cited as important factors in the federation's prediction "depletion of personal goods by individuals and the scanty stocks on the shelves of dealers and in distributors' warehouses."

His report adds that greatly improved credit conditions and the beginning of commodity price recovery are reflected in an "improved general morale."

"Check-up of 102 large companies showed that those firms which increased their advertising in 1930 over 1929 made a 58 per cent better profit comparison than those which decreased it," the report states. "Those same firms increased their lead still further in 1931."

President Hodges pointed out that a recent analysis of 70 large cities found that apreciable business recovery has been under way for some months in the cities where newspaper advertising has been the heaviest.

Lady Godiva Had a Horse, But Mr. Lee Only Had His Legs

Chicago, Dec. 7 (AP)—The difference between Lady Godiva and Thomas Lee of Chicago, is that Lady Godiva had a horse.

But let Mr. Lee tell about it.

"The themometer," he said, "stood at 33. I was going by an alley five blocks from home. Three men with guns stopped me and took my 85 cents. Then one of them said:

"'You must think we are in this business for fun. We'll show you we make a profit on every deal.'

"Then they took off my overcoat and all my other clothes and told me to run. It is difficult to explain my state of mind as I dashed from ash barrel to ash barrel, wondering what the neighbors would say."

Novarro a Director

Hollywood, Dec. 7 (AP)—Ramon Novarro, film star, has achieved his ambition to be recognized as a full-fledged director. But movie fans still will see him in two pictures a year.

62 POLICE RADIO SETS IN USE

Washington, Dec. 7 (AP)—Although television has made great strides in the past year, it has not yet reached the point where the Federal Radio Commission will recognize commercial possibilities in visual broadcasting.

The commission, in its annual report submitted to Congress today, said there has been great improvement in the quality and in the amount of detail in images transmitted, but the available number of visual broadcasting frequencies put a severe limit on the number of stations which may be operated without interference.

The commission said it has encouraged experimenters to try out frequencies above 3000 kilocycles.

The commission called attention to the rapid increase in use of radio by police, with 62 such stations now in operation, and also to rapid increase of communication by radio-telephone, radio-telegraph, in aviation and on ships at sea.

Demands by Teachers

Chicago, Dec. 7 (AP)—More pay, fewer pupils to instruct, and a five-hour day are among demands in a program formulated by union teachers of Chicago.

FASCIST FOE OF POPE TO QUIT

Rome, Dec. 7 (AP)—The resignation of Giovanni Guiriati, secretary of the Fascist party and therefore the second most powerful political figure in Italy, probably will be announced today, it has been learned on excellent authority. It was said that Achille Starace, the assistant secretary, will succeed his chief.

Guiriati's resignation has been talked of since September, when the government reached an agreement with the Vatican on the Catholic Action troubles.

It was said his removal had been demanded by the Vatican because of a speech he made at Milan in connection with those troubles and because the Vatican held him responsible, by virtue of his office, for raids on Catholic clubs.

"I'll be fair with you..

"I LIKE the way you put it up to us smokers to judge your cigarette by absolutely real things like mildness and better taste. Sounds like good common sense!"

Fair enough! That's all Chesterfield wants. That's all Chesterfield could ask for and does ask for—a trial.

"Promises fill no sack." After all, it's what you get out of a smoke that counts. And what you get out of Chesterfield, or anything else for that matter, depends on what goes in.

Better tobaccos don't grow than the tobaccos that go into Chesterfield. Ripe. Sweet. Aged and cured for two years under the watchful care of expert chemists.

Better cigarette paper can't be bought. Tasteless. Odorless. Pure!

GREETINGS! WE HAVE BEEN OUT OF TOWN OVER the week-end and were hopeful enough to bring along the old skates, but in spite of near zero weather the ice was disappointing. Log fires and good eats after a long walk through the woods was just as enjoyable.

Week-end visiting and entertaining is an art. The host and hostess who can make you feel at home, plan just enough entertainment without making you feel you are a bother, will allow you to be by yourself a little between long spells of talking, and bid you adieu without that telepathic "Thank Heaven, they've gone" feeling are rare.

In the case of the guest nothing adds more to a visitor's pleasure than to find a few of the season's new books in the room she, or he, is to occupy. Unfortunately many hostesses never seem to remember this and the average guest-room table is either bare of books or else holds the family's cast-off volumes. It is nice to dump down—as my grandmothers used to say—on your sofa in a loose negligee before dressing for dinner and quiet one's thoughts, or quicken them as the case may be.

Such Fun Reading!

FICTION, ALWAYS THE EASIEST TYPE OF BOOK TO select, is not available in the guest room unless of the vintage of 1918. For sheer enjoyment, like the lingering taste of Chateau Yquem, we can recommend Return I Dare Not by Margaret Kennedy, whose portrait of Noel Coward we would have recognized through the lift of the eyebrow and the "three successful plays on at once," without being told. It's "personality mongering" again, but such fun reading!

WE PREFER WITTY AND amusing stories with bright conversation. In fact, if we ever remember a clever phrase we make no bones about using it ourselves and taking all the credit for its being original. We feel it is one way of showing our appreciation to the author. In fact, WE could have written Private Lives, but we never thought about it. You probably feel just that way, too.

* * *

INCIDENTALLY, BOOKS make a very acceptable Christmas gift and when we get time we are going to weed out a whole ton of books in our library and replace them with new and better ones, so we hope we get just SCADS of books for Christmas. Just at the moment we are burning the midnight oil to finish Henry the Eighth, by Francis Hackett, a volume we NEVER could have written, but simply fascinating and funny enough. We had the thought that if the names and dates and scenes were changed it might be a story of modern times, so much international jealousy, intrigue, dishonesty, the common people holding the bag, as always. Times haven't changed much.

* * *

IT LOOMS LIKE THE MOST Dog Awful chore to do this column and our Christmas shopping within the next two weeks. Went down to Filene's bargain basement one day last week with the youngest to spend a dollar eighty-seven cents on nine presents. Believe it you must we got all nine of them, but had to select gadgets we never saw before such as, golf tees in a row, folding coat-hangers, squash-pie forks, square-toed evening slippers, rayon pajama bag, coiled like a rose in a box—directions before using should go with this one—a small and harmless looking plant, doll's roller skates, and cetera. After hours of hard labor and more fun than a goat we emerged triumphant and Mary is happy with a gift for everyone on her list.

Mrs. Hitchcock

WHEN WE received Agnes Murchie Hitchcock's wedding announcement the other day from New York we had a fleeting thought that perhaps she was announcing her silver anniversary as the engraving and lining of the envelope was in silver. However, it is just another little Manhattan custom we hear.

ON JANUARY 9, MRS. J. FRANKLIN McELWAIN and her many Beacon Hill friends are giving the first sub-deb dance at the Women's Republican Club. Mrs. Shurcliff is also interested in this affair as she has another daughter to bring out next year, Miss Alice.

WHISPERS COME TO US that the Wararen dance for Kitty Thayer was a very ginger-snappy event down Essex-way. It seemed like a long cold ride to us.

Dreiser Aided by Novelist

New York, Dec. 7 (INS)—"What we need in this country today is fewer speakeasy citizens and more criminal syndicalists," Sherwood Anderson, novelist and Virginia publisher, told 3000 men and women meeting to hear the report of the authors' committee which investigated conditions in the Kentucky coal mine strike regions.

Theodore Dreiser, chairman of the committee, the members of which were indicted for criminal syndicalism after their inquiry, "spoke out loud in a speakeasy country," Anderson said. "That's what criminal syndicalism is.

"If they take Dreiser to Kentucky to try him, it will be to the shame of all American writers if they don't go out at once and commit criminal syndicalism."

An "indictment," drawn up by Dreiser and his fellow-authors who conducted the investigation, was read.

"Conditions of terror, starvation and economic oppression amounting almost to peonage" existed in the coal fields, it stated, while free speech was denied the strikers and their civil rights suspended.

Charges the Red Cross functioned as a "strikebreaking organization" were made by Mrs. Adelaide Walker, member of the author's committee. She said women "with children starving and dying would go to the Red Cross and be refused aid because their husbands were on strike."

Dreiser did not attend the meeting.

MISS SUSAN MILLER DETTE TO WED IN MILTON THIS MONTH

Sister Will Be Her Matron of Honor

Miss Susan Miller Dette has chosen Saturday, Dec. 19, for her marriage to Mr. Arthur Andrews Holbrook. The 3:30 ceremony will take place in St. Michael's Church in Milton, the Rev. Vincent Bennett officiating.

Miss Dette, the daughter of Mrs. William Dette of Milton and the late Mr. Dette, will have as her matron of honor Mrs. James Fairfax Hamill of Greenwich, Ct., her sister, the former Esther Dette, and as maid of honor Miss Faith Rockefeller, also of Greenwich.

In Bridal Party

Two other young matrons, Mrs. George Putnam Sturgis, the former Harriet Morse of Milton, whose own marriage took place only last October, and Mrs. Albert R. Gurney of Buffalo, and four friends will make up her group of attendants, including two from out of town, Miss Joy Dickerman of New York and Miss Louise Driggs of Waterbury, Ct. From Milton will be Miss Grace Cushing and Miss Caroline Saltonstall.

The bride-to-be made her debut several seasons ago, becoming a member of both the Vincent Club and Junior League.

Mr. Holbrook, who is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Arthur T. Holbrook of Milwaukee, will have as his best man his brother, Mr. Herbert T. Holbrook, and a group of eight friends seating the ushers, another brother, Matson Holbrook, included. The remaining are the Messrs. Douglas Knumblarr and Ward Gregg, both of Cambridge, David Lanier of Washington, Ct., Joseph Gnarlus of New York, Edward White of Boston, David Garrison of West Newton and Amyas Ames of Cambridge.

Harvard Grad

The bridegroom is a graduate of Harvard, class of 1928, and is now in the Harvard Medical School where he will finish this June before taking his bride to live in Milwaukee. His clubs include the Fox, Hasty Pudding and Milwaukee University Club.

A reception will follow the service at the church, where the bride and bridegroom will receive with their parents at the Milton Club. After their wedding trip they will be at home in Milton after Jan. 3, where they will reside through the winter and spring.

Keen Interest in Matches

The Badminton matches taking place at the University Club this evening have aroused much interest. They will begin at 8:30, many [illegible]ing dinners before going on to watch the play. Among those entertaining will be Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner H. Fiske, the latter having been in charge of the committee sponsoring the tournament.

A group of debutantes will usher, headed by Miss Babette Morison, who will be assisted by Miss Polly Richardson, Miss Mary Jane Bigelow, Miss Harriet Moseley, Miss Beatrice De Menocal, Miss Charlotte Rantoul, Miss Isabella Lee, Miss Emily Perkins, Miss Margot Stan[illegible]d, Miss Jean Read, Miss Katherine Balch, Miss Ada Trafford, Miss Jane Bancroft and Miss Deborah Hall, a debutante of last year.

PATOU PICKS NEW COLORS

Recommends Soft and Golden Browns

In the following article, Jean Patou, head of the establishment in Paris that bears his name, discusses American women and their effect upon the evolution of style.

By JEAN PATOU

(Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Paris, Dec. 7—Perhaps American women realize that we in France study them and their tastes as one studies an "objet d'art."

We do not wish to dictate to them, but to evolve clothes for them suited to their individuality, to their varied but perpetual feminine charm. American women with their sure instinct, their appreciation of elegance and their good taste, have eminently repaid the attention we have given them.

Jean Patou

The American woman, when she is compared with the French woman is found to have many natural advantages. She is born to beauty to begin with. Her feet are smaller, her ankles more slender, her hands of a finer type. Given all this, she has also an intelligence that has stood her in good stead.

The American women have shown an instinctive feeling for those qualities that have long made the French woman pre-eminent in the world of dress. They, the American women, have wanted to dress as the French woman does. They have caught and made their own that rare quality that makes for elegance and distinction, that quality we French people call "chic."

The experts of fashion can take a gown of rare originality and very real beauty and put it on a girl of equal beauty and quality, and the final effect may not, after all, be what is called "smart." How often I am asked why, and yet the answer is very simple. A woman will be smart only when she has a sense of ensemble.

Above all she must pay attention to detail. It is detail that "makes" a woman's costume. All must go together, and she must know how to handle everything in order to sweep together one, sole, telling effect. This effect must be subtly, even to the perfume, feminine.

It is for that reason that I am especially grateful to the American women for the support they gave me two years ago when I made an abrupt departure from the prevailing mode. It was predicted that they would not agree to a shorter skirt. I gambled that they would.

I lowered the skirt and raised the waistline because I felt that women were beginning to carry to the absurd what had been meant only to put them at ease in the daytime and for sport. Women were beginning to risk endangering that subtle quality that I have heard Americans call "sex appeal" and that we in France call "allure."

I venture to predict that they will also support me in my belief that the run on the black and the red has gone far enough. This season I am recommending soft, golden browns, shades that become both the blondes and the brunettes. I think we shall see them much in vogue this coming season.

N. Y. Must Repay Millions in Taxes

Washington, Dec. 7 (INS)—The Supreme Court today held unconstitutional the New York law for taxation of national bank shares from 1923 to 1926, thus making New York City liable for refunds and penalties totaling $26,000,000 and other New York cities liable for $4,000,000 to 5,000,000 refunds.

The case was appealed by Andrew B. Keating, receiver of taxes of New York City from the U. S. Circuit Court, which was affirmed.

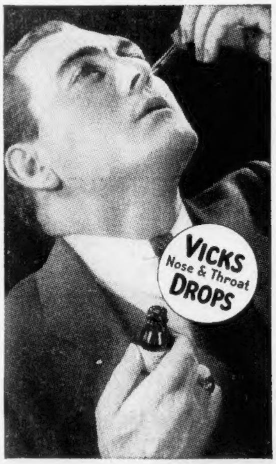
MAKERS OF VICKS VAPORUB ANNOUNCE

A New Plan for better "Control-of-Colds"



Made Possible by New Product Based on New Idea for Prevention of Colds

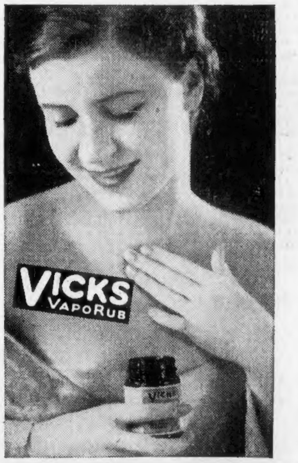
A third of a century ago, Lunsford Richardson, Sr., a North Carolina druggist, developed a new idea in treating colds—and with it Vicks VapoRub. Now, after years of research, Vick chemists have developed a new idea in preventing colds—and with it Vicks Nose and Throat Drops. These two are companion products—they aid and supplement each other. Together, they make possible the Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds" in the home.

Trial Offer to Vick Users

We believe that these two products—used as directed in the Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds"—will greatly reduce your family's "Colds-Tax" in money, loss of time and health. We believe this so strongly that we have authorized all druggists to sell Vicks Drops to any user of Vicks VapoRub on trial—to refund the purchase price if you do not find the Vick Plan for "Control-of-Colds" more than satisfactory in your home.

VICK CHEMICAL COMPANY

Lunsford Richardson
PRESIDENT



HERE, BRIEFLY, IS THE NEW VICK PLAN:

1. Before a Cold Starts

At that first sneezy, scratchy irritation of the nose or upper throat—Nature's unmistakable warning that you are "catching cold"—use Vicks Nose Drops promptly as directed. Many colds can be checked at this stage and bad colds avoided.

If you catch cold easily, the wise plan is to use just a few Vicks Nose Drops up each nostril after exposure to any particular condition that your own experience tells you is apt to give you a cold—for instance, a night on a Pullman—a dusty automobile ride—over-smoking—over-heated, over-crowded rooms, etc., etc.—and you feel the slightest stuffiness of the nasal passages. Vicks Drops are especially designed to aid the nose—Nature's "preventor" of colds—when over-taxed by such emergencies of our artificial present-day living.

2. After a Cold Starts

At night, massage the throat and chest well with Vicks VapoRub (now available in white "stainless" form, if you prefer). Spread on thick and cover with warm flannel. Leave the bed-clothing loose around the neck so that the medicated vapors arising can be inhaled all night long. During the day—any time, any place—use Vicks Nose Drops as needed for ease and comfort. (If there is a cough, you will like another new Vick product—a Cough Drop actually medicated with ingredients of Vicks VapoRub.)

This gives you full 24-hour treatment and without the risks of too much internal "dosing," which so often upsets the digestion—especially of children—and lowers body strength at a time when Nature most needs it to resist disease. Don't "dose" colds except on your doctor's advice.

VACHEL LINDSAY TAUGHT AMERICA HOW TO HEAR POETRY AGAIN

—By ROBERT E. ROGERS—

VACHEL LINDSAY, poet of Springfield, Ill., and of America, is dead in his home town at the age of [illegible]

ROBERT E. ROGERS

Thousands know of Lindsay only as the jazz poet, the man who taught America how to hear poetry once more. We all know how, after hearing G. K. Chesterton's superb "Lepanto" with its booming refrain, he wrote his own [illegible] march, "General William Booth Enters Into Heaven," to be read to the imaginary accompaniment of cymbals, tambourines, trumpets and bass drums. Everyone knows his finest and most lasting experiment in sound, the wierd and nervous "Congo." Some of us may remember "The Fireman's Ball" with its refrain of "clanga-ranga-clanga-ranga" and "The Santa Fe Trail," the sound of which imitates a thousand motor cars with their exhausts popping.

Preached Gospel of Beauty

It is true that Lindsay taught America once more to read poetry with the ear. But he did much more than that. He resented being called the jazz poet and he pinned his hopes for immortality on quite another aspect of his genius. Nicholas Vachel Lindsay was, above all else, an evangelist, a singing and drawing evangelist. His gospel was not Jerusalem the Golden but Springfield the Golden. By Springfield he meant every little town in the Middle West or in the United States, where life was fat and contented and corrupt but where the poet and artist starved and patriotism was only bombastically nationalistic instead of fervently local.

He came by his evangelism naturally. He inherited and grew up in an atmosphere of Swedenborgian mysticism. A sister was a missionary. He was descended of Campbellite stock and his mother was somehow interested in art and pageants. The boy grew up an artist, a poet, and a reformer. In 1912 he began tramping the farm countries of the West and South, trading rhymes for bread, preaching the gospel of beauty.

Dozens of the poems in his collected edition are evangelical poems. He was in boyhood an eager sympathizer with Bryan and in manhood with Roosevelt in his progressive campaign. He lectured and wrote poems for the Anti-Saloon League, about the white slave traffic, about socialism. He wrote stirring verses about Bryan and Roosevelt and John P. Altgelt, governor of Illinois, at the time of the so-called "Chicago anarchists." He belonged to that pre-war group of liberals that saw clearly how closely big business was tangled with politics, the saloon, vice, and materialism.

He admired the pioneer Johnny Appleseed and wrote poems about him. He idolized Lincoln and his war time poem "Abraham Lincoln Walks at Midnight" is one of the few war poems that have survived.

Home Town His Chief Interest

But his chief interest was in what he called "The Golden Book of Springfield," which was to be a gorgeous compilation, copiously illustrated and illuminated of the glories of his home-town. Not what Springfield had done but what Springfield might do! He had a mystical faith in the Yankee, Middle-West pioneering stock, and he believed such towns might become great centers of liberal culture.

He believed that the art museum was no less necessary to every town than the high school and the church. His book, "The Art of the Moving Picture," written back in the old days of D. W. Griffiths and the Biograph, when Mae Marsh and Mary Pickford were young girls, was the first serious book written on the films as a cultural force. His belief was that the municipal moving picture theater should be one wing in the art museum that was to rise in every city. "Painting in motion" and "sculpture in motion" he called the films.

He wrote enough children's poems to make a fat volume of brief and lovely verses instinct with the spirit of childlike imagination. And his series of Negro spirituals, to be sung or chanted in chorus, like "Old John Brown," "Simon Legree," and "The Daniel Jazz" are both comic and poetic to a high degree, not unlike the spirit of "The Green Pastures."

He was one of a half dozen poets who, from 1912 to 1917, changed the direction of modern American poetry. All were middle-aged, all were disappointed and unsuccessful, no one was at all like any of the others. Three of them, Robert Frost, Robinson, and Amy Lowell, were of New England; three of them, Masters, Sandburg and Lindsay, himself, were from the Middle West, from the Lincoln country. To them American poetry owes the course it has taken in the past twenty years that led up to Benet's superb "John Brown's Body."

Wrote His Own Epitaph

Let me quote Lindsay's most characteristic poem, "The Building of Springfield." It should be his epitaph.

Let not our town be large, remembering
That little Athens was the Muses' home,
That Oxford rules the heart of London still,
That Florence gave the Renaissance to Rome

Now let each child be joined as to a church,
To her perpetual hopes each man ordained,
Let every street be made a reverend aisle
Where Music grows and Beauty is unchained.

Let Science and Machinery and Trade
Be slaves to her and make her all in all,
Building against our blatant, restless time
An unseen, skillful medieval wall.

We should build parks that students from afar
Would choose to starve in rather than go home,
Fair little squares with Phidian ornament,
Food for the spirit, milk and honeycomb.

Say is my prophecy too fair and far?
I only know, unless her faith be high,
The soul of this, our Nineveh, is doomed,
Our little Babylon will surely die.

We must have many Lincoln-hearted men,
A city is not builded in a day,
And they must do their work and come and go
While countless generations pass away.

STARS SET FOR AMERICAN BASKET FUND SHOW TONIGHT

Stirring music of the U. S. Navy band at the Boston Garden tonight will be under the leadership of Bandmaster Alfred Lamarre. He and his men have volunteered their services for the great benefit performance.

"Most certainly I shall appear at the Boston American show tonight," said vivacious Lina Basquette, dancer extraordinary. Cocoanut Grove has released her for part of the evening—which will be appreciated by the Garden audience.

Harold and his brother, fast stepping Diamond Brothers now at Keith's Boston Theater, are going to demonstrate the speediest things in footwork.

A powerful meteor in Mr. Ziegfeld's Follies now at the Colonial Theater is Wini Shaw. She will lend her luster to the galaxy of stars who are to be in the American's gorgeous show at the Boston Garden tonight. It all means more food for Boston's poor.

A maker of stars is Mary Corbett, who has two of her proteges with the current Ziegfeld Follies, and will present a bevy of her dancers in a spectacular show.

BASKET FUND BENEFIT SHOW TONIGHT

Tonight's the night!

The most spectacular and unparalled cabaret show and dance ever staged in Boston will begin at the Boston Garden tonight at 8:30 o'clock — continuing until early morning.

It promises to be bizarre, novel and overwhelming in the array of theatrical talent that will participate, the diversity of features and the elaborate scale on which it will be presented. And the price is only $1 a ticket.

Only because it is in aid of the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund could such a wealth of stars and players be assembled.

TICKETS GO BY BLOCKS

The rarity of such occasions and the unprecedented schedule of entertainment and dancing has brought floods of calls for blocks of tickets. Because these tickets are priced at one dollar each, many are purchasing them in blocks of five, ten, twenty and fifty. Parties are being given at the Garden tonight.

TWO STAGES BUILT

Whole boxes of the socially prominent of night club devotees, the boxing and sporting fan—in fact every strata of Boston society will be represented in the vast audience that will be present to enjoy the show and dance. It will mark a new epoch in Boston amusement history.

Even the facilities of the Garden were inadequate to present the diverse assortment of novelties, theater units and companies that will be brought under that roof tonight. It was necessary therefore to construct two stages in the spacious arena where two bands or orchestras—two programs of ear and eye delights might be presented. Immediately one is completed the other begins.

LIST OF STARS

A distinguished list of prominent stage, screen and radio artists have volunteered their services. Miss Ethel Barrymore, queen of the stage, will come from the Plymouth after her performance in the "School For Scandal." Preceding her will be 60 principals, the entire orchestra and chorus from the current Shubert Theater attraction, the "Student Prince." Allan Prior, Gertrude Lang, Marion Weeks, George Hassell and Hollis Daveny will participate.

From the Ziegfeld Follies will come Harry Richman and a group of other players, including some of the glorified girls.

The pick of the Metropolitan stage show will present part of the night's program. Adriana, Mexico's Sweetheart, will officiate with the unit presenting the Six Gordonians, Five Gems and others of their colorful show, "Hacienda."

Benefit Show Program

The program of the show and ball at the Boston Garden tonight in aid of the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund follows. The order of appearance of the artists is subject to change.

RECORD BAIL IN HOLDUP CASE

Record bail of $35,000 and $25,000 was set on two youths in Somerville court today on charges of armed robbery and attempted breaking and entering.

George S. Little, 21, of Worcester st., Boston, was held in the larger amount after he pleaded guilty to robbery and carrying a loaded revolver and not guilty to the attempt to break and enter.

John W. Halse, 24, of Inman st., Cambridge, pleaded not guilty of the attempt and to the armed robbery charge. Bail of $10,000 was set in each charge.

The two were captured early yesterday morning in a doorway in Quincy st., Somerville. Later they were confronted by Jacob Shulman of 783 Somerville ave., Somerville, victim of a holdup Nov. 24.

Harvard Band Set Record This Year in Forming Letters

The Harvard University band broke its old record of a year ago by forming a total of 76 letters as it went through its stunts on the gridiron this fall, it was revealed today. Last year the total letters formed was 74.

Spelling out the names of the opposing college and making other difficult formations required practice nearly every afternoon preceding the games, with one afternoon devoted to music rehearsal.

Rain prevented the band from practicing its formations before the Army game so that the boys learned the formations on the deck of a Hudson river boat on the way to West Point.

In spite of the difficulties in such practice, the band spelled out "Army" without a hitch during the halves of that game.

SALARIES HIGH AT HARVARD

Salaries of Harvard [illegible] and professors are as high as if not higher than [illegible] Lamb, director of publicity at the University, declared today. The statement came in a reply to percentage figures drawn up by Professor Yandell of Yale which showed Harvard as devoting only 25 per cent of its income for salaries.

Lamb explained that of the $13,000,000 income for 1930-1931 the university expended nearly [illegible] 000 for salaries of professors and in research work alone. This brings the Harvard percentage up to between 35 and 40 per cent.

Full professors at Harvard receive from $8000 to $12,000 annually, with associate professors receiving $6000 to $7000. Assistant professors average between $4000 and $5500, while instructors get $3000 or less.

Prof. Henderson's figures quoted Johns Hopkins as devoting [illegible] 65 per cent of its income to salaries for professors, with 42 per cent for Princeton and [illegible] for Yale.

Christmas mailings for Italy must be made by Wednesday to be in time for the liners leaving New York for that country.

The mail early policy will mean adding extra unemployed men to the working forces in the central and substations of the Boston post office, it was stated by [illegible]

EMBERS OF LOVE

—By Hazel Livingston—

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Lily Lou Lansing, youngest of a large family, all of whom have sacrificed to give her singing lessons, comes to live in Oakland. She boards with her married sister, May, and her husband, Raymond, and works in an office in San Francisco. After leaving the ferry boat one morning she meets Ken Sargent, whom she used to know in Wood Lake, where his family had a summer cottage. She becomes interested in the son of a millionaire shipowner and her sister May becomes furious. Lily Lou accepts an invitation to ride with Ken. The latter gives her her first real kiss. Later she meets him at Wood Lake and introduces him to her family.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

SOMETIMES Lily Lou didn't understand all Ken said, but it flattered her . . . she remembered some of the words. She knew that Peggy Sage, with all her father's money, hadn't been able to excite his admiration as she who didn't even try . . .

They lay on the raft, in the sun, Lily Lou indolent, creamy skinned, not even breathing hard after the swim. Ken was fair enough to burn an unbecoming angry pink, and he wasn't a strong swimmer . . . Lily Lou had the best of him again.

"I'm not much good, am I?" he asked. "It's a funny thing, the second generation never amounts to much. Now take my dad. He fought for what he's got. He's wonderful. But he wants me to go on where he left off, and I . . . I'm no good—"

"Ken, you MUSTN'T say that—"

"Oh, it's true. Now if they'd just let me do what I want . . . Get out with the ships, instead of fussing around that damned old office . . ."

"I know, Ken."

Lily Lou patted his hand gently. She didn't know how it happened, but things had certainly changed. It was he who needed her, even more than she needed him.

At least she kept it hidden. He couldn't . . .

EMOTIONS CLASH

Still, sitting on the porch, waiting for him at night, she could hardly bear it.

Her father would reach down and put his slow, tough old hand over hers. She knew what he was thinking . . . hoping she wouldn't be going out.

From the rocker her mother would say, "Dear, dear, the time goes so fast . . ."

That meant that soon Lily Lou would be leaving them again and

SWEEZY CHALLENGES BISHOP TO POINT OUT SPEAKEASIES

"INTEGRITY OF MALDEN IS AT STAKE"

Police Commissioner Asserts Charge by Andrew of Young People Drinking Is False

Police Commissioner Artemas B. Sweezy of Malden today challenged the office of the district attorney of Middlesex County that speakeasies can be easily found in Malden and that "young people are becoming increasingly drunk."

These statements made [illegible] before the Malden High School Forum by Asst. Dist. Atty. William G. Andrew of Middlesex County, have [illegible] of Malden's police head [illegible] demanded proof [illegible].

SAPIR'S THEORY ATTACKED BY FR. CORRIGAN

Yale Professor's Talk "Cheap Revival of So-Called New Morality," He Says

"A cheap revival of the so-called new morality."

Rev. James I. Corrigan, professor of ethics and social science at Boston College, thus characterized the address of Prof. Edward Sapir of Yale today.

At the Old South Meeting House forum Prof. Sapir told an audience that "affairs based on love may be preferable to early marriages." He urged that divorce be regarded as a social affair.

"Prof. Sapir's views are by no means new or original. They are as old as paganism," Fr. Corrigan said today.

"The subject of his talk 'The Problem of Sex Morality' is a misnomer. With the professor there is no problem because there is no sex morality.

HIGHER THAN BEAST

"His views on companionate marriage and independence of women are but a cheap revival of the so-called new morality which is neither new nor moral.

"He asks us to frankly accept immoral conditions and delude ourselves by calling them moral. This may be anthropology, but it's not morality.

"Man is more than beast and it must be our constant endeavor to keep him higher than the beast.

"There have been periods of retrogression before the present. Fortunately, in former times, vice was recognized as vice. A menace in the present moral decay is that professors like Dr. Sapir are endeavoring to persuade the young that vice is virtue.

THREAT TO HOME LIFE

"This is retrogression that is irredeemible. Most people interested in the welfare of our country realize that a condition where there is one divorce to every five marriages is about a serious a threat to the home life and moral conditions in America as this country has ever faced.

"Right now we are very close to the condition of latter-day pagan Rome.

"Anthropological marriage of Prof. Sapir's type, instead of staying the moral corruption of the age, will but hasten the day of America's fall.

"What we need is a recognition of moral values in personal and family life, not an encouragement of symptoms that point to far advanced stages of a moral cancer.

"A little more morality and less anthropology would seem to be the indicated remedy."

STUDENT FINED $275 IN LYNN

LOVE IS NEVER "FREE" IN MODERN TIMES

By HELEN ROWLAND

LOTS OF modern young men and women [illegible] marriage [illegible]

They may go through the wedding ceremony, as a concession to the social customs of "the unenlightened"; but they do so apologetically, always assuring you that it is just a little matter of form. And that they will be just as "free" as though they had never walked up the middle aisle and signed on the dotted line.

NO WOMAN REALLY WANTS TO BE FREE!

[illegible] and self-delusion! No woman WANTS [illegible]

Nine women out of ten who go to Reno, carry their hope-chests with them, and step from the divorce court right to the altar to beg for a new pair of "hand-cuffs."

[illegible] MUST belong to SOMEBODY! [illegible]

When a girl goes in for what is known as a "free-love experience," she soon finds that the man gets all the freedom—while the woman gets nothing but the experience.

That he is free to break the bond, whenever it pleases him while she is free to lie awake nights inventing ways to hold him.

That he is free to have a change of heart or a change of mind [illegible] for a newer or younger [illegible]

And that's the way it usually turns out. Because, when a woman sets her heart on one man, it "stays put." But a man's heart is like a ferryboat—always going back and forth, and never docking anywhere, for long.

A MAN'S HEART IS LIKE A FERRY-BOAT—ALWAYS GOING BACK AND FORTH

To a man, love is an in- [illegible]

No matter how free a woman may THINK she wants to feel, it's always a shock to her to wake up some morning and face the fact that she will have to change the monogram on all the guest towels, separate the books, divide the bridge prizes—and start life all over again!

Blood Pressure No Handicap to Long Life

By Dr. R. S. COPELAND

[illegible]

High blood pressure frequently results from an [illegible] faulty diet. [illegible] diet may provide an excess of certain substances. [illegible]

[illegible]

It is important that the underlying constitutional disorder of heart, lung or kidney be investigated. If these fundamental causes are overlooked it is impossible to reduce the high blood pressure.

If you have high blood pressure do not think your happiness is ended. [illegible] women have [illegible] expectancy [illegible] But you do need to take certain precautions [illegible] may go about your daily duties.

Ken Reveals His Love for Lily

LOVE NO SECRET

[illegible]

"Take your coat, Lily Lou," her mother would coax.

[illegible] coat?" It would [illegible] "No, I don't want [illegible] mother."

"You'd better [illegible]" But we [illegible] Lily Lou would never admit that they were going to be [illegible]

[illegible]

STAR IN MAKING

She was the girl who was going to be a star [illegible] figure [illegible] from billboards . . .

When the soft, secret excitement, the thrill of Ken would [illegible] piano [illegible] her voice and [illegible]

Her mother, rocking on the porch, would listen half afraid. She sensed, without realizing just what it was, that something was wrong. She [illegible]

"I love you, Lily Lou."

Though her whole being thrilled to it, she kept her voice steady.

And one night he surprised her.

"Kiss me goodbye, Lily Lou. I'm going back to town in the morning. I won't be seeing you again, for a while."

She lifted her face, and he kissed her, gently. Then he got out and opened the door of the [illegible] and walked with her up the path to the door.

"Goodnight, Lily Lou."

PARTING DELAYED

He didn't even try to kiss her again.

Lily Lou stood on the porch. She watched him go. Watched him climb into the car, start the engine. He never even looked back. He couldn't be going, like this. Without a word, after all he'd told her about loving her . . . But he was. The car was moving. Lily Lou opened her mouth to call him—he shouldn't [illegible] and came [illegible] throat. Couldn't let him go . . . not like that.

What follows Ken's avowal of love for Lily Lou is told interestingly in tomorrow's installment.

How to Bleach Superfluous Hair With Safety

By JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON

And, since this particular reader has asked for additional suggestions for using the preparation I am inclined to believe that all of you will welcome more information on the subject.

Our reader writes: "It is with [illegible] lighten the dark hair, but it is impossible to use on the face [illegible] the strong odor. What [illegible] which would be equal to [illegible] offer."

Before giving the information [illegible] bleaching formula so that those [illegible] one is meant. Then, there may be many who missed it originally and who are in need of it.

There are two methods [illegible] the peroxide and ammonia [illegible] ration for bleaching, but the preparation itself is the same. The first method requires that six drops of household ammonia be added to three (3) tablespoonfuls of peroxide. This liquid is then patted on the area to be bleached, whether it be the skin or the superfluous hair growth, and allowed to dry. Several applications of the bleaching solution may be given each day until the desired degree of bleaching has been gained.

The second method suggests that the liquid compounded by the formula given above be made into a smooth, creamy paste by the addition of chalk of magnesia in sufficient quantity to give the consistency desired.

This paste is suggested for use only when application of the liquid is not effective. All such bleaching preparations act only while wet. Chalk of magnesia keeps the bleaching lotion in a moist state for a longer period of time than when the lotion is used in liquid form. Chalk of magnesia has no bleaching action, serving merely as a base to hold the bleaching preparation in a wet condition.

Now, let's answer the question our reader asks about a bleach for the face desired to avoid the unpleasant fumes of the ammonia.

The nostrils may be stopped up with bits of cotton to keep the ammonia fumes from penetrating and this should be done at all times when using this bleaching solution on the face. When this plan is followed, all discomfiture from the treatment is eliminated as well as any possibility of actual irritation.

Lemon juice, in the same proportion as that used for peroxide may be added to the original formula if you wish. I do think however, that the simple expedient of using cotton in the nostrils will be sufficient to make the use of the bleaching solution pleasant and safe.

Husband Won't Kiss Her

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a woman 24 years of age, married eight years to a man seven years my senior. We love children, but have none. All my married life I have never been to a dance for the reason that my husband don't want to go, and the last two years he always has an excuse when I ask him for a kiss. If I argue about it, he says "Well if you don't like it you know what you can do."

I'm young and good-looking but I feel like 40. What would you advise me to do? Should I leave him so he can marry again or shall I stay and wait for gray hair to come along? But the funny thing is I love him.

TIRED OF EVERYTHING.

Dear Tired: People who have been married as long as you have, especially if there are no children often drift into the depressed state you describe, the doldrums of married life.

Why not try to put some fresh interests into your life. Take up a new line that interests you. If you're fond of children, borrow two or three from an institution and give them a good time at your home. It takes so little to make children who have no home life happy.

Fashion Notes

THE BEAVER WORKS but not very hard for his popularity since everyone loves this rich fur. A new and smart traveling coat is made of sand colored tweed with a huge rounded, upstanding collar, deep cuffs and a curved hem border of beaver.

A PEACH of a lounging pajama uses the light top idea. It is a one-piece model with a high waisted bodice with elbow-puff sleeves. The skirt is black, while the bodice is peach. The material is satin.

More Girls Like Nancy Wanted

By WINIFRED BLACK.

NANCY'S out of [illegible] and none of us knows what to do about it. We're all sorry for Nancy [illegible] go on [illegible] in the face of every human being [illegible] can [illegible] her and help her and encourage her and countenance her strange goings on.

Nancy is a remarkably pretty girl. She has brown hair with a glint of bronze in it [illegible] with a sweep back from the brow that makes you think of the old picture of "The Neapolitan Boy"—the one that used to hang in grandma's parlor right next to "Pharaoh's Horses" and on the other side of "Washington Crossing the Delaware."

And Nancy sings. Oh, she'd never make a lyric soprano, and they wouldn't even know she was alive at the Metropolitan Opera. But Nancy can sit down at the piano and do "The Lass With the Delicate Air" and "Who Is Sylvia?" until really you know.

But Nancy is a failure—a terrible failure.

When she first came out of school the [illegible] rang all the evening and the telephone rang from breakfast to midnight.

Nancy must go here. Nancy was invited there.

Then it was Nancy the beauty, Nancy the belle.

And now poor Nancy! Her mother is terribly discouraged with Nancy. The poor thing sits at home alone evening after evening reading, if you please, and pretending to enjoy it. She takes long walks all by herself. Even in the rain she walks. She says she likes it too.

Nancy won't go to wild parties—just won't go at all. She says she hates to see a perfectly nice man act like a fool after the third or fourth round of drinks and she can't bear off-color stories. And what do you think? She won't even smoke.

As to swearing, Nancy says it bores her to hear people say the same swear word over and over as if they thought there was something piquant and provoking about it.

Mother smokes a lot. Mother drinks a bit too much. Mother can swear like a parrot—and does ever so often. And mother has half a dozen love affairs all going at the same time.

It certainly isn't mother's fault that Nancy is such a failure. And yet if mother—it's all very puzzling, isn't it?

Daily True Story

A Clever Ruse

THREE MEN sat near a window watching a house across the street. On a table lay two sub-machine guns, loaded and ready. The floor was littered with countless cigarette stubs and remnants of meals were scattered about. The men took turns in sleeping, but one of them was always watching—night and day.

The house across the street seemed to be deserted. The blinds were drawn and a "For Sale" sign hung near the door, which was painted not at night by the light of nearby street lamps. In the house were two men and a girl. The girl was speaking.

"They're still there," she said. "The windows were still open when I came in. They've probably got machine guns."

One of the men, young, but his face drawn and white, answered her.

"You can't do anything, Helen," he said. "Not a thing, and you're taking a chance on getting hurt by coming here. Don't worry. I'll find some way out."

The third man spoke.

"There isn't any way out except the front way and they're watching that. As soon as you show they'll open up——" He left the sentence unfinished.

WANT A CHANCE

The younger man began to pace the room in nervous strides. "Why are they taking it out on me?" he asked. "I didn't have anything to do with Cantwell getting bumped off. All I want is a chance to get out of this house and out of town and out of the racket."

The girl caught hold of his hand and stopped his pacing.

"I know you didn't have anything to do with killing Cantwell," she said. "If I thought you had I wouldn't be here. But you can't go out there and let them shoot you down. They think you did it and that's enough for them. Isn't that right?" she asked turning to the other man.

"That's the way Cornova's mob look at it," he answered. "You were lucky to be able to hide in here when they started after you. Cornova got bumped and they figure somebody has to get bumped to make it even. And you train with Holton."

"I worked for him, yes," protested the younger man. "But not murder—I never thought he would go that far. And all I want now is a chance to get out and quit."

"Wait a minute, Tom," said the [illegible] "There must be some way to do it. Let me think."

"Listen," she said. Rapidly she began to outline a plan. "It's the only chance," said Tom when she had finished. "I'll try it, anyway."

LEAVES HOUSE.

Ten minutes later the girl opened the door and left the house. Across the street the hand of one of the watchers at the window moved toward a machine gun. His companion stopped him.

"It's only the girl," he said. In silence they watched her pass from sight. Then one of them spoke. "If that bird doesn't come out pretty soon we'll crash the place and get him," he said.

Two hours went by but there was never a minute when there wasn't at least one watcher at the window. No one went into the house opposite. No one attempted to come out. Then the watchers saw an express truck draw up in front of the door. The driver and his helper got out and went to the door. It was opened cautiously and they entered.

A few minutes later they reappeared staggering under the weight of a heavy packing box. They lifted it into the waiting truck.

All three watchers were now at the window. "There's something fishy about that," said one of them.

Another swore and smacked his hand on the table. "The poor sap," he said. "We've got him just where we want him. Come on, we'll get the car and follow that truck. Don't open up on it until there's a chance to get clear."

The sub-machine guns were swiftly hidden under coats and the three raced downstairs to a waiting automobile. As the truck drew away from the curb the car fell in behind it. The back of the truck was open.

THE ROAR OF GUNS

The big packing box was in plain view of the men in the car.

"Run alongside," one of them directed the man who was driving. The truck and car were now passing along a deserted street lined with warehouses. The automobile drew almost even with the truck.

There was no mistaking the sound which followed—the roar of the two machine guns. It lasted for only a few seconds but when the automobile shot ahead the sides of the truck were punctured by splintered holes. The packing box had been raked from side to side, the bullets passing through it.

"Well, we got him," said one of the three, as their car sped around a corner before the truck driver had had time fully to realize what had happened.

"He must have thought we were saps to think he could get away with that."

As the gunman was speaking the door of the house they had been watching slowly opened and a man and a girl ran out. As they walked swiftly down the street Helen turned to Tom and said: "I knew they would fall for it. They thought you were trying to escape in that box."

Whoopee! This Is Our Night to Howl!

Tonight's the night! The night of the Big [illegible] The biggest show [illegible] The big show [illegible] of the Boston Evening American [illegible] cast and ensemble! The greatest [illegible] country's greatest boxers! It [illegible] be impossible to get such an array together in any theater! You never saw one [illegible] Just turn to the city page and see the array of talent. Whoopee, Fan and Fannie! [illegible]

Out there in the Far West, where men are men, they are poking considerable fun at the effete Easterners for the loss of [illegible] So. California-Notre Dame, Oregon-N. Y. U. and Dartmouth-Stanford games. But [illegible] happen [illegible] football year to howl, that was all. The fact remains, however, that the West has been showing a growing superiority in all branches of athletics, track and field, swimming, baseball, as well as football. There is a reason for it. Californians must remember New England athletes are laboring under the handicap of climate. Open air athletics in New England is limited to seasons Californians and Southerners can engage in open air competition and training the year around.

Back of the California football teams is a much longer practice and competitive season than is enjoyed in New England. Because of the shortness of our season, many New England teams really do not get going [illegible] when the machine begins to [illegible] and the boys get hitting on the high, the season is over. It's the same story in athletics. Californians can train and compete in the open the year around. Here in New England competition is limited to the summer months. Then the athletes have to go indoors. And how many suitable indoor places are there to train and compete in? Westerners should remember these conditions when they start boasting about the preponderance of West Coast athletes in Olympic competition.

Another thing that should be remembered is that in North vs. South athletic duels or in North or Middle Atlantic Coast vs. California sports clashes, competitive conditions favor the Southerners and the Californians. A football team coming from warmth to cold is benefited. But a team going from cold to warmth is handicapped. A California team playing in brisk Northern weather invariably is "pepped up." A New England team leaving the cold and chill of the North and playing in balmy California often suffers from lethargy and loss of drive and pep. In going over the reverses the North East has suffered on the gridiron this season, these conditions should be considered.

Summer track competition is different than fall football. You can look for some astounding performances in next summer's Olympic Games in Los Angeles. Competitive conditions in Los Angeles should be ideal. If properly acclimated, or not brought to California too soon, Eastern and foreign athletes are likely to outdo themselves. A sprinter should be a shade faster, a jumper a bit more springier in California than on his home heath. Heat and warmth bring about the best in any athletic competition that is not too strenuous or too prolonged. In only long distance running and Marathon races are athletes handicapped by heat.

Altitude as well as climate also plays a prominent part in competition. An athlete from a low country coming to a high, or vice versa, is handicapped unless properly "seasoned" to the altitude. As far as acclimating athletes goes, trainers bringing teams or athletes to next summer's Olympics in Los Angeles either should bring them there a month before the competition or not until a day or so before their races. It takes three or four days for climatic conditions to be felt and requires 10 days or a fortnight for one to become acclimated.

Through a breakdown in the ice freezing apparatus of the old Arena wherein they were scheduled to do their early practice, the Bruins were a full week to 10 days behind the other hockey teams in starting their practice. But you never would recognize it from the team work displayed by the Bruins and Maroons in last Tuesday's game in the Garden. The team work of the Maroons was as ragged as the team play of the Bruins was good.

The Boston team play was a delight to watch. Almost invariably when the three forwards came down the ice every man was in his proper place and position to make or receive the pass and the way the Bruin forwards juggled the puck continually drew out the Montreal defense and goal. The Montreal forwards came down the ice together occasionally, but seldom passed and generally the players were not in position to give or take a pass. We'll doff our chapeau to Art Ross for his quick perfecting of the team play of the Bruins. Last Tuesday night Boston apparently was in mid-season form, while the Maroons, benefited by earlier practice, showed a decided lack of team play. How will the Bruins look tomorrow?

From gay Paree Sparrow Robertson writes that Frankie Genaro, former flyweight champion, is going to turn jockey and already is in training, piloting the bangtails . . . Frankie recently was married . . . For second time . . . In Sparrow's lists of guests we note "Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Duncan" . . . That's Jim Duncan, former national discus champion and hurdler . . . Jim now is superintendent of the American Cemetery . . . But he's far from being a "dead one" himself . . . Jim is almost as "lively" as Eddie Devlin, New York's famous "sporting undertaker" . . . Sparrow says ice hockey is going strong at the new Palais des Sports . . . One of these days there may be a real international world's hockey series as the game is spreading like wildfire . . . But it should not be waged under the present Stanley Cup rules.

Moe Berg, the Cleveland catcher, is the best educated man in baseball . . . Moe took post graduate university courses both here and abroad . . . Is a great linguist and speaks seven languages . . . Brother players kid him a lot about it . . . From far off Japan Willie Kamm recently sent Moe a postcard covered with Japanese writing on which Willie scribbled: "Read this, you're so damned smart" . . . Some of the boys think Bob Quinn has got the worst of the Gaston-Bob Weiland swap . . . But Bob may know things . . . Better wait and see how they turn out . . . Cheer up, the annual epidemic of the great American mania, selecting All-American teams, about has run its course.

ONE OF THE YOUNGER DEFENSE STARS
BOSTON

When Manager Art Ross of the Bruins makes up his mind to get a hockey player he usually succeeds. Take the case of Joe Jerwa for example.

Ross purchased the big defenseman along with [illegible] Beattie from the [illegible] Coast League two years ago, but the New York Rangers [illegible] an option on both with the result that Jerwa finally went to the Patrickmen.

That didn't worry Ross a bit. He waited until the close of the last campaign and then acquired Jerwa from the Rangers in exchange for Dutch Gainor.

With such defense stars as Capt. Owen, Shore and Hitchman as mates, Jerwa naturally doesn't see much action and he doesn't stand out when he is on the ice, but Ross is confident that he made a smart move in securing the youngster.

Far Western universities have never been known to sidestep [illegible] to make one [illegible] criticize [illegible] lack of modesty in this instance.

Something Wrong With Accusation

It is alleged that Gordon [illegible] one of Coach Jones' assistants, accused Bill Hawkins, [illegible] center, of gathering U. S. C. data to pass along to Notre Dame. After a careful search of Hawkins' home and the two weeks imprisonment of the accused in a cottage in the isolated Topango Canyon, the students, alumni and public demanded that Howard Jones apologize to the player before the entire football squad.

Passing the Puck

After a full week of rest, the [illegible]

[illegible] cuts a lot of ice in hockey. The [illegible] Maple Leafs [illegible] at Montreal [illegible] Thursday evening [illegible] Toronto [illegible] Saturday [illegible] and the Leafs [illegible] finishing on the long end of a [illegible] score.

The Bruins, still undefeated and untied at home, have yet to win a game on the road. The Maroons, too, have been beaten in every start on foreign ice.

Playing in home surroundings [illegible] more or less of a handicap but it shouldn't make a [illegible] difference that it does in [illegible] It doesn't in baseball, football or other major sports.

The return clash between the Maroons and the Leafs was much tamer than their battle in Montreal, when five major penalties were handed out and the five guilty players fined $25 each. Only one major was called in the game at Toronto, Nels Stewart received it for slashing King Clancy.

Clint Benedict, former Maroons' goalie, made his debut as a National League official in the game between Les Canadiens and the Falcons at Montreal. He gave a very creditable performance, according to reports.

The Bruins' Cubs beat the Bronx Tigers, 4 to 0, when these rivals clashed in New York several days ago but the result promises to be much closer when the pair meet at the Garden next Saturday.

The Bruins' Cubs, who haven't played since last Thursday, will remain idle until Wednesday, when they will meet the Arrows in Philadelphia. On the following evening they will be entertained by the Reds in Providence. Their next home game will be against the Bronx Tigers, latest addition to the Can-Am circuit, at the Garden next Saturday night.

The perfect athletic league is one so evenly balanced that all teams finish with a percentage of 500. There never has been, and probably never will be, such a circuit, but the Canadian division of the National Hockey League very closely approaches such perfection.

At the close of Saturday night's contests, Les Canadiens and the Americans were tied for first place with nine points and the Maroons and Maple Leafs were tied for the runner-up position with seven points, or only one game back of the top.

$50,000 Realized in the Round Robin

New Haven, Ct., Dec. 7 (NS)—Besides being an artistic success the round-robin football game played between Yale, Dartmouth, Brown and Holy Cross here on Saturday, was likewise a financial triumph.

It was estimated today that a bit more than $50,000 was raised for the unemployed. The proceeds will be divided equally, the presidents of the four competing colleges deciding on the disposal of the sums allotted them.

SPORTS REEL

FOUNDATIONS ARE LAID FOR BUSINESS RECOVERY

By B. C. FORBES

BUSINESS [illegible] up or down. Meanwhile [illegible] made in preparing the way for recovery.

Stocks [illegible] notwithstanding that short-sellers became more [illegible] and unscrupulous than ever in circulating false [illegible].

The general [illegible] Wheat has [illegible].

Retail reports are [illegible].

Appre[illegible] at Washington [illegible] Hoover's announced plans for aiding [illegible] home building [illegible].

Monetary [illegible].

Many Letters of Protest

This [illegible] letters protesting against the New York Stock Exchange's attitude towards depressers of quotations [illegible]. There is overwhelming demand that, since security quotations have already been hammered to the lowest [illegible] Exchange [illegible] no longer [illegible]. Indignation is expressed [illegible] should [illegible] for their own [illegible] maintain the institution [illegible].

The [illegible] for drastic action by Congress. Investors continue to tell this writer that while they [illegible] they are afraid to buy so long as short-sellers are permitted to play havoc with the market. Presumably the most vicious rumors will continue to be energetically circulated while bears are permitted to exercise [illegible].

Sentiment Less Nervous

Inv[illegible] various [illegible] less nervous. They unanimously agree that "Wall Street" is regarded as the most disturbing influence and that unprecedented hostility has been generated. The more [illegible] those familiar with the workings of finance are [illegible] what Washington [illegible] legislation.

Railroads Need Assistance

The disastrous shrinkage in railway earnings [illegible] bond and stock quotations causes acute anxiety. The Interstate Commerce Commission's miserable failure to act constructively is exciting a growing demand that Congress recognize the world [illegible] of that body and pass remedial legislation. American [illegible] companies, banks, savings banks, universities [illegible] innumerable private estates, are loaded up with railway investments. Unless something effective be done promptly to stop the descent of our railroads towards bankruptcy, the consequences would be appalling.

President [illegible] proposed [illegible] was financing [illegible] to the menacing gravity of the situation. But the I. C. C. persists in its do-nothing policy. [illegible] fatal proof that they are incapable of [illegible] far-reaching consequences of their purely punitive line of action—and inaction.

Meanwhile, even our strongest railway systems issue worse and worse earning statements. Not only have shares fallen to lower levels that any this generation has known, but bonds are tumbling lamentably. [illegible] of railway securities threaten to become [illegible] investment.

The financial world hopes that employes of our railroads will exhibit more statesmanship than the regulators, the overlords of our railroads, have exhibited.

Developments in Industry Mixed

Developments [illegible] mixed.

Hoarding [illegible] now that the National Credit Corporation is functioning [illegible]. Our stock of gold is rising. [illegible] the vanishing point [illegible] of what they were at the 1929 peak. Most foreign exchanges [illegible].

On the [illegible] few industries report improved activity. Bank clearings [illegible]. Railway traffic has not yet begun to expand. [illegible]. Regarding unemployment [illegible] that can be said is that figures didn't become worse.

Foreign affairs [illegible]. In its present childishly pessimistic mood, Wall Street [illegible] Germany as on the brink of [illegible]. [illegible] by international bankers.

American Power's Net Is $15,092,239

American Power & Light Co. reports for 12 months ended September 30 net of $15,092,239 after taxes, depreciation, interest, preferred dividends of subsidiaries and minority interests, equivalent, after dividend [illegible] preferred Series A stocks, to $2.42 a share on 2,950,938 no-par shares of common outstanding at end of the period, excluding scrip, against $18,639,679 or $4.10 a share on 2,551,665 common shares in 12 months ended September 30, 1930.

Petroleum Imports Decrease in Week

Imports of petroleum (crude and refined oils) at the principal United States ports for the week ended Nov. 28, 1931, totaled 1,105,000 barrels, a daily average of 157,857 barrels, compared [illegible] barrels, a daily average of [illegible] barrels for the week ended Nov. 21 and a daily average of 193,071 barrels for the four weeks ended Nov. 28, reports the American Petroleum Institute.

Dividends

Eastern Steamship Lines, Inc. declared a quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on the common stock payable January 2 to stock of record December 18. Three months ago a payment of 37½ cents was made prior to which the stock had been on a 50 cents quarterly dividend basis.

Regular quarterly dividends of $1.75 a share on the first preferred and 87½ cents a share on the no-par preferred were also declared payable January 2 to stock of record December 18.

Kennecott Copper Corp. today [illegible] cents from $[illegible] by declaring a quarterly disbursement of 12½ cents a share, payable January 2.

Eastern Steamship Lines declared a quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on common, placing stock on $1 annual basis. Three months ago a payment of 37½ cents was made.

Nevada Consolidated Copper Co. declared a dividend of 10 cents a share, payable December 31. Three months ago [illegible] dividend of 20 cents was paid.

Utah Copper Co. declared a dividend of $1 payable December 31. Three months ago a dividend of $1.50 was paid.

Sparks Withington Co. omitted quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on common. Regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 on preferred has been declared for the balance of fiscal year ending June 30, 1932.

SPECTATOR Says:

Having withstood, in acceptable manner, all sorts of bad news in the past fortnight, the new week, holding out promise of several constructive developments, should witness a new lease of life in the market. With President Hoover slated to map out a course of relief for the railroads of the nation, and with railroad labor leaders scheduled to meet to discuss wage reductions, the final batch of problems in the readjustment process seems to be nearing a conclusion.

Kreuger & Toll

Unless the whole line of reasoning [illegible] and there is no reason [illegible] possible to accomplish [illegible].

Auburn

[illegible] Auburn and that the stock would [illegible] a spectacular move. This [illegible] a good deal of speculative [illegible]. The trouble is that everyone [illegible] know the reputed [illegible] Auburn [illegible] on the way up, not buying it on every dip. Reports for several days [illegible] the stock [illegible].

[illegible] be ignored once public speculation revives. One must be careful, however, as some undoubtedly [illegible] receivership.

Utilities

There is still a lot of bearishness current on utilities but this is largely centered on the holding companies like Electric Bond & Share and North American. [illegible] American & Foreign Power [illegible] and the Electric Power & Light [illegible] are the [illegible] of liquidation [illegible] of the selling in North American.

Price Situation Is Clearer in Steel

Despite disinterested att[illegible] both steel producers and consumers [illegible] in the first quarter of 19[illegible] accentuated by a further [illegible] in bookings [illegible] the price situation in many [illegible] appears to be clearer [illegible] Steel [illegible] weeks [illegible].

Macaulay [illegible] Life [illegible] Co. of Canada, known in Wall [illegible] as the "Apostle of Common Stocks," pronouncing the duration of the depression to rest in the hands of the Federal Reserve [illegible] the need of [illegible] when few [illegible] had devoted [illegible] the subject.

Thomas B. Macaulay

President Macaulay declared a [illegible] develop [illegible] the small [illegible] were applied [illegible]. He stated:

"The gradual purchase by the Federal Reserve Bank of even $500,000,000 bonds would have a beneficial influence vastly greater than would appear at first. If matters be allowed merely to develop as they will, the cure will come in time by the gradual increase of banking resources through the accumulated savings of the nation.

"But why should we wait for this slow accumulation if the Federal Reserve Banks can at once forestall that development by adding to the national banking resources whatever sum may be needed to restore the price level and begin the renewal of business activity at an earlier date?"

PRICES MIXED IN BOSTON DEALINGS

Prices were mixed in today's dull dealing on the Boston Stock Exchange after early buying sent shares upward from fractions to a point or more. Rails softened after a good start and Atchison was down over a point near the close.

Pennsylvania eased a minor fraction and Boston & Maine prior preferred was unchanged after selling 3 points higher. New England Telephone was strong, advancing over 2 points. American Telephone was [illegible] a point higher in early trading but [illegible] to show a fractional [illegible] near the close.

[illegible] of Brokers and [illegible] showing [illegible] of a point. Kreuger & Toll dipped a [illegible] fraction.

Norwood awarded to Merchant National Bank of Boston at [illegible] per cent $[illegible] loan payable June [illegible]. Other bidder was Faxon, Gade & Co. [illegible] per cent.

STATE ST. Hears:

That while it is early to refer to the staving off of a new industrial low, in the last seven sessions, as a bull triumph allowance must be made for a starved bull force that has at last tasted bear meat. That they will make further efforts to push prices forward must be taken for granted. In view of this determined attitude, and the chance unfavorable news is abating, it is no wonder the shorts are worried.

U. S. Steel

Students of the market [illegible] place [illegible] fingers on one [illegible] when [illegible] change of front [illegible] with the action of U. S. Steel [illegible] making a new [illegible] that [illegible] forced the [illegible] to three successive new lows. The important point, however [illegible] that each new low was within a [illegible] of ¼ of 1 point. Without [illegible] a bottom, this [illegible] shows strong resistance and informed accumulation which is never very far from the actual bottom.

While past history may not lay down any definite formula that [illegible] stock market, it often provides [illegible] the characteristic top and bottom action. In 1929 the [illegible] dips and snapbacks that failed to [illegible] the end just as sharp rallies [illegible] reactions fail to violate the [illegible] and seem to hint at the end.

Transition Seen

Among large operators for [illegible] decline there has been one major difference of opinion. [illegible] manner in which the bear market would end. One group has steadfastly maintained that it would be a matter of overnight transformation while the other has said [illegible] a long [illegible] transition. At the moment it appears the latter are on the right track. Not only are various groups showing an inclination to revise their trend but there is a steady absorption of stock on scale down that usually builds a gradual rather than a sudden turn.

It is big bears who are said to favor a period of transition, [illegible] are now covering commitments and going long selected issues. If their lead is followed it might produce some uneasy moments [illegible] the chances favor ultimate [illegible] dication of their policies.

Favored Purchases

The favored long side speculative mediums can be placed in three distinct groups. They are the companies with small capitalization, those harboring a large short account and those giving definite indications that deflation is complete. [illegible] burn, Auto-Lite and Industrial Alcohol can be placed in all three brackets and at the same time are the most volatile. Central, [illegible] Standard Gas and Loews are oversold. Finally Bendix, [illegible] Bohn Aluminum and Biscuit appear thoroughly deflated. While this is a representative, it is from a complete list and are trading, not investment suggestions of usually reliable operators.

Those who have the courage to buy stocks should expect some favorable items. New Haven, for instance, should omit common payment, if only to offset the labor argument that lower wages are desired in order to maintain dividends.

PRICES STEADY IN NEW YORK DEALINGS

New York, Dec. 7—Prices were generally steady in late trading on the New York Stock Exchange today. The market oscillated irresolutely, while a distinctly better tone developed in bonds.

Markets generally were disposed to await developments at Washington, Chicago, Basel and elsewhere.

The convening of Congress, the meeting of the railway labor chiefs in Chicago, of the reparations advisory committee at Basel and important dividend meetings gave promise of a full week.

RALLY IS STAYED

A fair rally developed in the share market during the morning, but was checked around midday by liquidation which was widely regarded in brokerage circles as tax selling.

Early advances of 1 to 3 points were largely lost. New York Central sagged 2 points below Saturday's close, and Standard of N. J. more than a point, in fairly active selling. U. S. Steel sold off a point, then recovered partially, along with other leaders, which steadied in quiet trading.

The better tone in the bond market, particularly in the rails and foreigns, gave fresh evidence of the stilling of much of last week's uneasiness.

While Wall St. seems but mildly hopeful of the results of the meeting of railway labor delegates to consider the carriers request for a reduction in wages, Wall St. does not anticipate a serious controversy.

An early and favorable decision from the Interstate Commerce Commission on the carriers' qualified acceptance of the increase freight rate plan was again rumored.

TAX SELLING SEEN

Selling to establish income tax losses is usually a factor in the stock market at this time, and some brokers thought they saw the first conclusive signs of it today, particularly in the sale of large blocks of Standard of N. J.

Dividend uncertainties remain a depressing influence, although some observers feel that expected reductions have already been sufficiently discounted. New York Central directors are expected to meet Wednesday, and while omission has been rumored, Wall St. is now more inclined to look for a 50-cent quarterly payment, as against $1 previously.

Some of the recent rumors about Central Europe were stilled by Adolf Hitler's statement to the Associated Press that his party would seek power through established political means.

International Paper Company today announced to its newsprint contract customers that it is reducing its base price on newsprint for the year 1932 to $53 a ton at New York and Chicago. Present price at those two points is $57 a ton. Other representative prices are $52.50 at Boston; $56 at Atlanta, and $60 at San Antonio.

CURB MARKET IS NARROW

New York, Dec. 7 (AP)—The curb market backed and filled with little sense of definite direction today. Trading was occasionally active but price changes were slight.

Activity was confined to a narrow range of issues. Electric Bond & Share afforded a fair proportion of the market's volume, improving slightly during the forenoon but easing off later. Cord Corp. appeared frequently, reaching a moderately higher quotation in response to the early flurry in Auburn on the stock exchange.

Newmont Mining rallied, presumably because of expectations that metal prices were due to improve. The oil group was particularly stagnant, notwithstanding weakness of Jersey on the big board.

Utilities generally held steady. A few higher priced shares fluctuated a point or so, but among the active issues changes were of a nominal variety.

Urges Congress to Stop Bear Selling

New York, Dec. 7—Representative Sabath, Illinois, in New York American says:

"Congress should act at its session to stop short selling of securities and commodities and to accomplish that end I shall introduce measures on the opening day of the session."

He declares short selling on the New York Stock Exchange and on the grain markets is one of the main causes of the prolonged depression in business.

City Stores Co. Operated at Loss

New York, Dec. 7 (AP)—City Stores Co. and subsidiaries today reported for the nine months ended Oct. 31 net loss of $633,685 after reserves for depreciation, contingencies and deductions of minority stockholders' interest.

For the corresponding period of the previous fiscal year the company reported net profit of $726,978. Net loss for the quarter ended Oct. 31 last net loss was $308,417, against net profit of $415,174 in the like quarter last year.

Bonds Are Higher in N. Y. Market

New York, Dec. 7—The trend of most bonds was upward today. Many of the low-priced rail lines advanced. Utilities displayed strength on light demand. Foreign obligations, especially the Germans, were firm and United States government loans, particularly the Liberties, sold at increasing figures.

GOOD YEAR FOR RAYON TRADE

The year 1931 has been a more satisfactory one for the rayon industry as a whole because of the fact that open and honest dealings with customers have resulted in producers and manufacturers bringing about more stabilized conditions, especially as regards prices.

Real progress has been experienced in this branch of the textile business in direct contrast to the backsliding witnessed in most other industries. This is the opinion expressed in the current issue of the Textile Organon, published monthly by the Tubize-Chatillon Corp. The publication states:

"Truly it would seem that in 1931, after trying all other methods of making a healthy industry, the producers have at last hit upon the only sound and businesslike way to achieve stability, namely, honest and open dealing with one another and with their customers.

"Perhaps when the proper time comes the producers will arrange to meet regularly and discuss the problems of the industry in an open and sane manner; with this main objective in mind, the producers so meeting might even decide to call themselves an association."

National Electric Expands Holdings

Expansion of holdings of National Electric Power Corp., eastern unit of Middle West Utilities Co., was revealed with acquisition of municipal electric systems of Beaufort, Newport and Morehead City, N. C., following favorable votes by citizens of three cities. Properties are adjacent to principal transmission lines of National Electric Power in that area and it is considered possible they will be connected when deemed advisable. Three municipal properties will be operated by Tide Water Power Co., a National Power unit.

North Western Bond Request Granted

Chicago & North Western Railway Co. has received authority from the Interstate Commerce Commission to issue not exceeding $16,000,000 of 4½ per cent general mortgage bonds of 1987 and $19,089,999 of 4½ per cent first and refunding mortgage bonds series D to be pledged from time to time as collateral security for short term notes.

In support of its application the railroad stated that the excess of cash requirements for the period from September 1, 1931, to December 31, 1932, over probable cash receipts would be $19,305,176.

Bar Silver Higher

London, Dec. 7 (AP)—Bar silver very steady and ⅛d higher at 20½d per ounce.

Stocks Are Steady in London Dealings

London, Dec. 7 (INS)—The pound sterling slumped to $3.25¼ on the London Stock Exchange today, only ¼ of a cent above the low record for the present movement recorded last week. The pound opened at $3.27½.

The stock exchange leaders moved narrowly. The renewed decline in sterling was due to several factors. One was the possibility of the Bank of France liquidating part of its 80,000,000 pounds holdings in London, since the French Government has guaranteed the bank against loss. The aggravated international situation was also responsible

Gold rose two shillings and one penny to 126 shillings, two-pence an ounce, which is withn one shilling and two pence of the record low price established in 1920. In sympathy with the declining pound, gilt-edged stock issues were dull and weaker. Industrial issues were mainly steady.

New York Transit Plan Ready

New York, Dec. 7—The new transit unification plan, upon which New York Transit Commission has been working since last summer, will be submitted to representatives of B.-M. T. and Interborough this week, in an effort to obtain their approval of its basic features before it is published and sent on to public hearings. While it is understood that both companies think prices offered for their rapid transit properties far too low, it is reported many other features, such as general method of financing, set-up of Board of Transit Control and provisions for operating contracts, are regarded favorably by the companies.

Engineering Company Expands

New York, Dec. 7 (AP)—The Wellman Engineering Company of Cleveland, Ohio, announced the purchase of the clam shell bucket and heavy trailer business of the G. H. Williams Company, of Erie, Pa. Manufacture of these buckets and trailers will be immediately transferred to the Wellman plant in Cleveland.

Rossia to Reduce Capital

New York, Dec. 7 (AP)—Stockholders of Rossia Insurance Company will hold a special meeting Dec. 18 to vote on a reduction in capital to $1,500,000 from $3,000,000 and reduction in the par value of the stock to $5 from $10.

Youngstown Puts Up Prices

New York, Dec. 7 (AP)—Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company has advanced prices on all wire products $1 a ton for first quarter, 1932, delivery.

$50,000,000 New Financing

Major piece of utility financing receives consideration when the Public Service Commission of New York meets, probably this week, to decide on petition of Consolidated Gas Company to market approximately $50,000,000 of $5 cumulative preferred shares. Petition has been in commisson's hands since February. It is certain Consolidated Gas has enough cash on hand, both in parent organization and in subsidiaries, to withhold offering until conditions improve in securities market.

Cotton Futures Steady

New York, Dec. 7 (AP)—Cotton futures today were steady, unchanged to 1 point lower. December, 5.98; January, 6.04; March, 6.23; May, 6.40; July, 6.56; October, 6.82. Rubber futures were dull. December, 4.30. New contracts—December, 4.30; March, 4.52; May, 4.62.

R. K. O. PLAN IS GIVEN O. K.

New York, Dec. 7—The Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corp. stockholders' protective committee announces it is "satisfied that it is to the interest of the stockholders to vote in favor" of the plan proposed by the management to prevent receivership. Statement said the management had agreed with committee that out of the money to be raised by the subscriptions, $6,000,000 will be reserved solely to provide funds for the payment of the 6 per cent secured gold notes, or to reimburse the corporation for expenditures made out of income in paying such notes.

With this arrangement, together with economies, committee has hopes subscribers will in effect not be required to pay more than the $2.50 per share payable at time of subscription.

Electrical Experts Form New Committee

A national committee of leading electrical technologists has been formed by experts representing all major branches of the electrical industry, the railways and governmental departments.

In announcing the organization the American Standards Associates, under whose auspices the committee will operate, said its purpose will be to correlate the industrial standardization work of the entire electrical industry and end the conflicts and administrative complications which have obstructed past standardization practices.

Alaska Juneau's Profit Is $62,300

Alaska Juneau Gold Mining Co. estimates November profit at $62,300 before depreciation, depletion and Federal taxes, against $120,500 in November, 1930. For 11 months profit is estimated at $1,444,350 before depreciation, depletion and Federal taxes, against $978,800 in the first 11 months of 1930. Company reports that extremely unfavorable weather conditions during November hindered production of gold appreciably.

Eastern Steamship Net Is $1,345,799

Eastern Steamship Lines, Inc., reports for October net income of $17,528 after all charges, against net income of $48,013 in October, 1930.

For the ten months to Oct. 31, net income amounted to $1,345,799 against $1,881,485 in the corresponding period of 1930.

Perryman Suspended

The committee on listing of the New York Curb Exchange has suspended dealings in the common stock of the Perryman Electric Co. until further notice.

Let's End Soon the Rule by "Lame Ducks"

With the Democrats in control of the House, and Progressive Republicans holding the balance of power in the Senate, it seems reasonable to expect that the new Congress will soon submit for ratification the Norris Amendment to the Constitution.

This amendment would end the long delay that now takes place between the election of a new Congress and its first meeting in regular session.

The Norris Amendment provides that the newly-elected Congress shall convene and the newly-elected President and Vice-President shall be inaugurated in January following the November election.

This change would have been made long ago but for the opposition of a reactionary House Committee on Rules.

With the Norris Amendment in effect, President Hoover would not have been able to keep the new Congress out of power for thirteen months after its election.

There is good reason to believe that it was the intention of the framers of the Constitution that the new Congress should meet within a month after its election. The date for the first Congress could not be fixed because it depended upon the final ratification of the Constitution.

And the failure to fix the date resulted in the custom of permitting the old Congress to hold a short session after its successor had been elected.

This procedure is most unfair to the people. They are entitled to be represented by the Congress that they elect as soon as that Congress can convene.

This procedure is also unfair to Representatives in Congress. They are entitled to an opportunity to make a record upon which they can stand for re-election.

Members of the next Congress must soon begin their campaign for renomination without having made a record in office by which they can be judged.

Representative Garner, of Texas, has long been a supporter of the Norris Amendment. The Democratic House, under his leadership as Speaker, cannot better begin its work than by adopting this measure without undue delay.

The Senate is overwhelmingly in favor of the Norris Amendment and will support the leadership of the House in submitting it to the States for ratification.

A Splendid Show for a Great Cause

We commend to you without reservation the mammoth show and ball to be held in the Boston Garden TONIGHT for the benefit of the Evening American Christmas Basket Fund.

Music by eight or nine dance bands.

More than twenty-five theatrical acts.

Ethel Barrymore, Harry Richman, the entire company of "The Student Prince," not to mention the other distinguished gentlemen and ladies of the stage who have so generously volunteered their services.

A gorgeous spectacle and a continuous flow of sparkling entertainment from 8:30 until the wee sma' hours of morning.

All for $1.

You would pay double that sum to see any of these worthy stars in their regular, formal performances.

Here you will see them at their informal best, giving freely of their talents that women and children may not go hungry on Christmas Day.

You will see this extraordinary performance. You will be a part of this fine charity.

Theatrical men said ungrudgingly that the last benefit for the Basket Fund was the greatest ever staged in the city of Boston.

Take our tip. Don't miss this one.

A 5-Year Program

A Massachusetts commission on the stabilization of employment has made its report to Governor Ely.

The essence of its report is this:

The State should at all times have ready a five-year program of highway and building development.

This program should be financed in normal times by the pay-as-you-go policy.

But in abnormal times, such as we have been experiencing, the Governor should proclaim that an emergency exists.

The program then should be advanced. The work planned for two years should be consolidated into one year. The State should issue bonds or short-time notes to finance it.

Thanks to the aggressiveness of Governor Ely that is exactly the plan which has been put into effect in Massachusetts and thanks to the aggressiveness of Mayor Curley that is the plan that has been put into operation in the city of Boston.

The plan is a splendid one. It relieves unemployment. It supplies useful work for American citizens who otherwise would have to rely upon a dole. It enables the State to keep its valuable plant in good shape. It enables the taxpayers to get their public work done when the cost of materials is cheap.

If the national government at Washington would have the sense and courage to undertake such a program, in proportion to the vast wealth of the country, our troubles would soon be over and forgotten.

Able, But Handicapped

The Republicans of New Hampshire have put their best foot forward in nominating John H. Bartlett for Congress.

The ex-Governor declares he is for an adequate Army and Navy. He is for a national bond issue to put men to work and restore confidence and revive prosperity. He is to be remembered favorably for his fine fight against the League of Nations.

If he loses this fight against ex-Congressman Rogers, an excellent candidate, it will be because he is carrying the burdensome load of the ineptitude of Mr. Hoover and the national Administration at Washington.

New York Day by Day

Diary of a Modern Pepys

NEW YORK, Dec. 7—Diary of a modern Pepys: To the tram for a farewell to Floyd Gibbons, off again to the wars, and to my typing, finding epistles from Marie Dressler, Gene Tunney and Don Clarke. Then to the Keats Speeds to see their niece, Florence Simrall, whom I love very much.

Dropping in on Ray Long, Jr., on the way home, we played a new game called yoho, mighty fun, too. And later to a tea, chatting to Maybell Olwell, Karl Kitchen, Charlie Driscoll and Emma Hunt. And Leon Gordon articled to paint my portrait in a gaudy house robe shortly.

To an Armenian dinner with the Earl Benhams, Zaz Hitchcock, the Frank Tours, Frank and Mary Craven, the Frank Cases and Clara Walsh, then to Miss Barrymore's "School for Scandal," incredibly dull. Later to Mayfair, dancing a whirl or two but mostly talking with Irene Castle about our dogs.

Undoubtedly Broadway draws many pathological hybrids into its swirl. They are usually recognizable by their mignon walk and kerchief-in-the-cuff swishes. Yet I cannot believe all the insinuating whispers about this person and that. To attain celebrity on Broadway is to be besmirched. Such accusations are often the refuge of the envious—implications that are never told to those slandered and thus cannot be denied. Even on Broadway there are clean living men, who have a pronounced love of art, music and other ennobling things in contrast to speak-easy smart-cracking and night club gossip. They often bear this unjust stigma.

Another type peculiar to the baroque Broadway environs is very frequently classed a gigolo but is not. His plentiful income is an enigma. He lollops in luxury, dresses like a Bond street blood, spends money freely in gay haunts and squires an orchidaceous beauty of the moment. He can speak casually and authoritatively of Paris, London and Shanghai and has manners and niceties of speech that proclaim the gentleman. But when the question of his livelihood is brought up, Broadway indulges a characteristic shrug. If Broadway cannot find out how a man makes a living, he is a gigolo.

Personal nomination for the slickest fitting evening suit in town—that worn by Pepy de Albrew.

And there is the silly yarn that Joe Frisco popped into the Hotel Seville the other morning and asked to meet their "famous barber."

Not all orchestra leaders tire of the eight times a week monotony of their job. When G. P. Huntley was starring in "Three Little Maids" in London, Frank Tours was wielding the baton. There was a tea scene without music, lasting 20 minutes, that would have permitted Tours to escape from the pit, perhaps to a neighboring pub. Yet for 600 nights he preferred to remain and watch.

Central Park's mammoth apartment house building reached a peak as economic disorder swept its fiercest destruction in real estate values. From the Circle to 90th street there was a forlorn array of dizzy spires. Some of the most stupendous for a time had less than a half dozen tenants. But slowly they filled and several are almost to capacity. But there is still ghastly emptiness that gives bondholders a nice set of jitters.

The celebrity curtains at Chauve Souris is again a clutter of caricatures of supposedly and in instances doubtfully important figures of the day. The brush once wielded by gifted Ralph Barton was handled by the young Russian—Gard—who did the "celebrities" at Sardi's.

I once accompanied my father to a theater featuring such a curtain in hope he would spot my caricature among the many adorning it. He did and observed with customary gruffness: "You'll probably wind up running a minstrel show with your name on both sides of the bass drum."

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Cut Out Hardware

WHAT ARE you going to give Mother for Christmas?

A shiny new kitchen range? So she can make some of that swell angel-cake you're so keen about?

Or maybe a new ice box? Great to have plenty of ice cubes for you-know-what when the crowd drops in—

Or perhaps a sewing machine? That's the ticket! Mother certainly does need a new sewing machine. Why, you can have twice as many dresses if Ma makes them at home. She might even learn to make Dad's shirts—oh, yes?

And what has Ma to say about it? Probably nothing. But you might be surprised if you could know the thoughts that pass through Dear Old Mother's head when she discovers a fascinating mop or a thrilling set of muffin tins in her Christmas stocking. She'll never tell you what she really wanted was a pink lace step-in and some chiffons—even though she is size 48 and 53 her next birthday. But Mrs. Lucy Jones isn't so backward. She's a Dear Old Mother herself—and she's all steamed up with this idea that the family should say-it-to-mama-with-hardware. Her letter—which I copy verbatim with snickers—should work amazements with many a Christmas list.

"Dear Elsie Robinson—

"Christmas is coming and rebellion is in my heart. I am sure that there are a great many women who feel as I do, so here goes.

"WHY MUST MOTHER'S PRESENT ALWAYS BE SOMETHING FOR THE HOUSE?

"Last year, before Christmas, I told my family if they couldn't buy me something that wasn't for the house, I would rather not have any presents. And I ask you, what did I get?

"A BREAD TRAY AND KNIFE—

"AND A NICE TEA POT!

"I needed handkerchiefs, stockings and a purse. I would have liked a nice scarf, a suit of silk underwear (something I have always longed for but never owned) or something along that line. A book of poems or a nice hair brush would have pleased me very much. Every time I grind anything in the food chopper, I imagine I am grinding my feelings about Christmas gifts for the HOUSE. I have issued the same ultimatum this year and fully expect to get a nice iron skillet and a rolling pin.

"Yours for better or worse,

"Lucy Jones, Cortland, O."

And will that lady be cut out and passed around the Family Circle? Oh—lady—lady! Myself, I'd like to mail it to the head of every house in America with an inclosed list of every doodad, gimcrack, kickshaw, gadget and knicknack dear to the feminine heart, regardless of race, color, age, religion, waistline or political party.

Hardware? It's a grand thing. We must have it. And if the House needs a furnace, a new tin roof, a roll of linoleum or a cement sidewalk, by all means get them for the Dear Old House. But don't cram 'em in Mama's Christmas stocking and expect her to sob with joy.

For Mama's not a house—nor a domestic implement. She's a PERSON. A dear, warm, foolish, wistful, feminine person who has interests quite apart from those of a mother or a wife. Gay, girlish wishes, such as she had when she was 16—And if she doesn't find a vanity case, a pink silk nightie, a set of dangly earrings, three kinds of perfumes, four kinds of bath crystals, some beach pajamas, a pair of spangled slippers and a year's subscription to my writings in her Christmas stocking, then, take it from me, dearies, you're a bunch of pikers!

The Curtain Raiser of the Campaign

By Claude G. Bowers

THE DEFEAT of John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, for some years the Republican leader in the House, by Bertrand H. Snell, of New York, for the empty nomination for the speakership would seem a fight full of sound and fury signifying nothing. Neither of them has any hope for the speakership which passes to Jack Garner, the Democrat.

Under ordinary circumstances the success of Snell would mean that he would displace Tilson in the party leadership on the floor; but this was determined otherwise last February in a conference, when Tilson was chosen for another term. Mr. Snell will receive an empty honor and Mr. Tilson will continue to lead, unless the former insists that the vote this week on the speakership carries with it the leadership.

It would be interesting to know the secret of this unfortunate bitter factional fight. Had Tilson been defeated by a Westerner or a Progressive it would have significance; but Snell is as reactionary as the man he defeated. They stand for precisely the same policies, and these the policies of Mr. Hoover.

Some time ago, when it was thought possible that an attempt would be made to conciliate the embattled farmers, there was some discussion of Mr. Hoch, of Kansas; but he received but eleven votes. The Administration group remains the dominate power in the House on the Republican side.

Kansas Is on a Rampage

At length Charles Curtis, the Vice-President, after much travail, has determined to be a candidate for renomination. For months he has been considering the wisdom of announcing his withdrawal to become a candidate for re-election to the Senate. Since then he has been making a careful study of the situation in Kansas; and his decision, in view of his known scepticism regarding the re-election of Mr. Hoover, carries a reasonable assumption that he found the prospects for the Senate in Kansas no more attractive than those for the national ticket.

Kansas has a Democratic Senator; Kansas has a Democratic Governor; and Kansas is on a rampage because of the Administration.

If defeat stares an ambitious politician in the face wherever he looks, it is better to go down as the candidate on a national ticket than as a candidate for the Senate.

That is the reason that one of the foremost Republicans in the Senate, who comes up for re-election next year, and faces the certainty of a defeat, was hoping that Curtis would run for the Senate and make way for him on the national ticket with Hoover.

It is not without ample reason that public interest just now is concentrated on Democratic candidacies and policies. The candidacies come later; the policies in Congress are just a little way ahead. It is interesting to note the emphasis "Greeks bearing gifts" are placing on the fact that the Democrats are in possession of the House by a meagre majority and will be "responsible" for revenue measures.

The public however knows that the necessity for tax increases are imposed upon the Democratic House by the prospective two billion-dollar deficit of the Republican Administration. The Democrats have not been in power during the three years that the finances have been growing worse and worse. The Republicans have been in control of all branches of the Government—absolutely.

The Democrats have had no power to prevent the piling up of the deficit; and they did fight, as a minority, against some of the Administration policies that have contributed to the deficit.

When President Hoover makes his report on the "state of the Union," he will be compelled to announce that revenues have fallen off, that the deficit is piling up, and he will ask Congress to increase the taxes to cover the deficit of his Administration.

Business Men Will Place the Responsibility

The strategy of the "Greeks bearing gifts" is to persuade business men who will feel the pinch of increased taxes, already too high for comfort, that the Democrats are responsible. This is presuming too much upon the ignorance of business men who have never been so watchful of what was transpiring in Washington, and never so disgusted with the results. They know who was responsible for the tariff act which has built a barricade against foreign trade and reduced the customs revenues to a pitiful figure.

They know, because they protested against it at the time.

They protested against it as certain to deprive us of foreign markets.

They protested because it would reduce the capacity of our foreign debtors to pay their debts.

They protested against it with the "thousand leading economists."

Business men know that when there is a deficit of two billions, taxes must go up; and when they feel the pinch of increased taxes they will place the responsibility on those under whom, and whose policies, the deficit came to necessitate the increase.

Just Folks

Fear

The great god Fear grinned back at me:
"I am the foe men never see,
The hurt they never feel," said he.

"I am the wrong they never bear,
The poison they themselves prepare.
I am the shadow on the stair.

"I have no voice and yet I speak;
No strength and yet I blanch the cheek
And leave the strongest morals weak.

"I am the blackguard man befriends,
Heeds most, feeds, cherishes, attends
And 'gainst all counsel wise defends.

"I fire no gun, I make no cry,
No lodging place in fact have I.
Yet I'm the countless deaths men die.

"Mine is a humor ghastly grim,
The lamp of reason I can dim,
Though I am nothing but a whim.

"I am man's cruelest, bitterest foe,
Yet past his door I could not go,
Had he the wit to tell me: 'No'."
